THE BELLEVILLE GAME.

A good crowd assembled Monday morning to take in the football game between the N. C. I. and the B. H. S. at Belleville. We went up on the G. T. R. 10.20 train and arrived just in time to get nicely prepared for the day, before dinner.

The game was played in a little vacant lot out on Bridge street. We think the grounds, by virtue of their size, were chosen to pasture a cow in, and that the long grass, weeds, and other green things, so common there, must have choked the poor creature. But anyway the game began after a few lusty yells by the N. C. I. rooter's club, who always turn out in full force.

One of our best men, the reliable Bill McGreer, was at home. We think it is a safe bet that Job never missed a football game, with his comforters, however much else he may have suffered. But I guess Bill was with us in spirit, anyway, even if he could not walk. The loss of him and Carter gave us quite a jolt, and so B. H. S. put over a goal in the first half. The only B. H. S. cheering of the day came from the members of the fair sex who lined the little enclosure in great numbers. Still a very few of them, locking hands, could have played ring around a rosy with the whole grounds and never touched a corner.

In the last half "Doc" Vrooman, our Star Forward, put in a goal. In was a real treat to hear the N. C. I. rooter's club yell:

"Wiskey We We, Wiskey Wa Wa, Holy Mackinaw Eat em raw,
Waugh awwwwww."

But despite the frantic efforts of our forwards we could not put over another, for a giant, in a bathing suit, on the other team had and an odd trick of sending the ball out of danger every time "Scammy" bent his knee to shoot.

But just you wait B. H. S. till we get you on a real football field and the Blue, Yellow, Blue, will show you a few lines of speed. Why Dug Ham could not wait till the next day to practice up his wind, but ran all the way to the midnight train that night.

We might just remark that the Belleville fellows refused to play off the tie. Although the game finished at 4.45 p.m., the six forty train brought very few fellows home.

Eye-Witness.

THE HISTORICAL LECTURE.

The Lennox and Addington Historical Society held its first meeting of the season on Friday evening, Oct.
15th. When the President called the meeting to order standing room was difficult to obtain and several were unable to secure admittance.

After a few introductory remarks the lecturer for the evening, Mr. Frank Yeigh, of Toronto, was introduced and gave his new lecture on "Canada under her century of Peace: 1812-1912."

Mr. Yeigh gave a brief review of the conditions as they existed in Upper Canada at the time of the War of 1812 started, and by means of some splendid views he was able to show his audience some of the principal characters in that war and some of the important battle grounds and monuments. He then spoke of the Canada to-day and by an effective contrast between the past and present he travelled rapidly across this country to Vancouver. His views of new and old Ontario, the middle west and the mountains were particularly appreciated and were highly praised by those who heard the lecture. The entire lecture was most instructive and entertaining and the Historical Society is fortunate in being able to start its sixth season so auspiciously.

The President of the Society announced that the next meeting would be held on Friday evening, November 22nd, when Prof. W. S. Wallace, of McMaster University, Toronto, would give a lecture on "The first white man in America." A notice of this meeting will appear later.

The meeting closed with "God Save the King."

CANADA AND DR. BARNARDO

AN INTERESTING DEPUTATION

What Dr. Barnardo has done for the Old Country and for Canada cannot be too well and widely known, and the Rev. W. J. Mayers has recently arrived from London on purpose to tell that interesting and remarkable story throughout the Dominion.

Mr. Mayers is the Senior Deputation Secretary of the Institution and one of Dr. Barnardo's oldest friends. He has brought with him ten specially trained boys from one of the London Homes, who, by their rendering of a very fine and varied programme of music, will evidence the care that has been bestowed upon them. They are accompanied by their musical instructor, Mr. H.
Aaron.

In England and in Australasia these musical meetings have been attended by thousands of people, and never fail to deepen the interest in the work.
The presence in the Dominion of over 20,000 young people who have been placed out by this great philanthropic and inter-denominational Institution is at once a tribute to the greatness of Christian charity and to the advantages offered by this new country. A splendid record has resulted from Dr.
Barnardo's emigration work for the last thirty years. It is hoped that wherever Mr. Mayers and his musical boys go they will be welcomed by all interested in the uplift of child life. It is certain that a most enjoyable musical evening may be spent in their company, and the opportunity of helping a great Institution is one that Canadians will not willingly miss.

We would call special attention to the announcement of the visit of the Barnardo Deputation to this town, which appears in our advertisement columns.

CHICKEN FATTENING DEMONSTRATION

The demonstration in the crate fattening of chickens now being carried on by the Agricultural Office is very successful. Twenty-four spring chickens are being fattened in crates, four birds to a section. The birds are fed night and morning on a batter composed of 2 parts finely ground oats, 2 parts finely ground buckwheat and 1 part of finely ground corn, mixed with sour skim milk. The 24 birds ate 42 lbs. of grain the first week, and 100 lbs. of skim milk, and made gains of 19 lbs. for the 24 birds. A pen of 4 White Wyandottes made the phenomenal gain of 4 lbs., 6 ozs. in one week, over 1 lb. increase for each bird in 1 week. The birds were bought at 12c per lb., live weight and the Department has received offers from both Montreal and Toronto to take these crate-fattened milk-fed chickens at 18 cts. per lb. dressed weight delivered. At these prices the White Wyandotte cockerels are worth $2.50 per pair dressed.

All interested in this method of fattening poultry are invited to call and inspect the birds and methods of feeding. The birds are being fattened at the Royal Hotel Yards. Full information and methods of fattening can be obtained from the Agricultural Office, Napanee.

Mr. F. C. Elford, formerly Professor of Poultry at Macdonald College, visited Napanee on Tuesday, Oct. 22nd, and delivered a very interesting and instructive address on the "Outlook for the Poultry Industry." The meeting was held in the Agricultural Office. The audience much enjoyed Mr. Elford's talk. This is the first of a series of special meetings to be arranged through the Department of Agriculture. Arrangements are being made to have Prof. W. R. Gramam, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, and Prof. M. A. Jull, of Macdonald College, visit Napanee and deliver addresses to the Poultry Club on timely and practical topics, during the winter.

In the same paper it says, one thousand Greeks from Pittsburgh, seven hundred from Wheeling, and like number from other places have enlisted to fight in the war that has been arranged by Greece, Montenegro, Servia and other Balkan countries, against Turkey.

It may be that the diplomats will be able to put one more weight on Europe's safety valve, the Treaty of Berlin, but it looks doubtful. It is realized that while the governments in the coalition might be willing to try to get along awhile longer with things as they are, they are unable to control the militarism of their subjects. In other words, the people of the Balkan states want war, and when people want war badly enough they generally get it.

It looks as if Mr. Roosevelt might have hit on a great truth when he says the battle of Armageddon is at hand, in which everybody who wants to fight will get all the fighting he wants. It may be that the prophecy, Joel 3, 10, is ready for fulfilment, "Beat your plowshares into swords and your pruning hooks into spears. Let the weak say, I am strong."

It is undeniably true that Europe has been an armed encampment of four and a half million men for a generation. Those who would otherwise be following the plow and pruning the trees are forging and handling instead the weapons of war. The financially weak nations, like Italy, are draining their resources beyond the power of long endurance. The situation is reaching a point where the militarism of the people is likely to get the best of the diplomate and financiers and when that comes the world will certainly have the great time of trouble predicted in Dan. 12:1. Thank God! All the prophets show that just beyond the time of trouble lies the Golden Age for which we all are longing. "The desire of all nations shall come."

Park, became known yesterday. "I don't feel a bit as though I had been shot," said Col. Roosevelt last night. The colonel was so much better that his physician gave him permission to re-establish communication with the outside world.

Says Vallon Fired Shots.

New York, Oct. 29.—It was learned last night from sources close to the defence that the appeal which counsel for Charles Becker will make for a new trial for the former police lieutenant will set forth, under what will be described as "new evidence," that Harry Vallon, the informer, fired the shots that ended Herman Rosenthal's life; that "Bald Jack" Rose's story was a frame-up against Becker; that Sam Scheppe, state's witness, who gave corroboration to Rose's tale, perjured himself when he swore he knew nothing of the murder plot and that Harry Vallon also committed perjury when he said he did not ride from the Hotel Metropole in the "murder car" after the slaying of Rosenthal.

Neely Is Elected.

London, Oct. 29.—In the bye-election held in East Middlesex yesterday to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Robert Sutherland, M.P.P., the Conservative candidate, George W. Neely, was elected over William Sutherland, Independent, by a majority of 551. The defeated candidate is a brother of the deceased member, who had a majority last December of 25.

Pumpkin Pie Blamed.

Toronto, Oct. 28.—That poisoned pumpkin pie may have been responsible for the death of William Mainwaring and his wife early Sunday morning at their home, 16 Ellsworth avenue, is a new theory that the police are working on in the hope of solving the mystery.

Spellbinders Start Work.

New York, Oct. 29.—The Democratic national committee announced yesterday that 350 speakers would be put on the stump in New York State this week for the conclusion of the Presidential election. Each of the three leading parties is to have a demonstration in Madison Square Garden during the week, the Progressives, Wednesday, and Democrats Thursday, and the Republicans Friday, and leading speakers of all three parties will cover the city and state during the time intervening before election. After an interruption of a week, Governor Woodrow Wilson resumed campaigning yesterday. He left Princeton yesterday morning for Philadelphia and southeastern Pennsylvania. The governor looked forward to a strenuous week of speech-making, mostly in New York and New Jersey.

Harry Sinclair, Galt, Ont., ger on Detroit train; shouldered, head and eye badly cut.

Heavy mogul locomotives wing the two trains, which, the holiday traffic and large of troops carried, the trains ceptionally heavy and of considerable length.

The scene of the wreck is a yards west of the C.P.R. static Windsor main line. The flag gradually drawing out of the when it met the "trooper" around a dangerous curve at a mile gait.

The engineers of both trains diately saw the danger ahead and on their emergency brakes they were of no avail.

The heavy troop train smashed the pilot of the passenger baggage car telescoping the passenger coach, which was occupied by a Company of the 48th Highlanders seriously injuring four and pinning the whole company.

The baggage car was pushed through the passenger coach for a distance of ten feet. It then upwards, pinning those at the end of the car under its weight glass and heavy pieces of iron were strewn in all directions. The first man killed was from the debris, being almost two.

One minute after the crash the "alarm" was sounded by Highlander bugler, immediately the call to "Fall in." Officers' Highlanders poured their coaches to a man, and their equipment, worked like to extricate the dead and comrades. Soldiers were rapidly into the service, and the coach was soon pulled to pieces and willing hands.

The impact had but little effect on the heavy coaches composed of Detroit train. Two passengers more or less slightly injured. The only car on the train damaged at all was the diner, this car having its furniture strewn over the floor and its rear platform broken off. The passengers state that they felt but very little shock from the collision, appearing to them as if there had been a sudden application of the emergency brake.

In fact, most of them did not realize that there had been a wreck at all, until they saw the procession of stretchers containing the dead and wounded to the temporary hospital.

Up to a late hour last night the exact cause of the wreck was unknown, although several theories were advanced by experienced railroad men.

ITALIAN IS KILLED.

Guelph Foreigner Is Murdered as Result of Feud.

Guelph, Oct. 29.—For the first time in twenty-three years a murder has been committed in the city of Guelph, and while no one has been charged directly with the crime, the police have six Italians locked up, some as material witnesses in the case, and others on suspicion. Michael Frazara, who was shot in the back on Alice street shortly after midnight Saturday night, died in the general hospital about twenty-four hours after he was shot, without giving the authorities any definite information as to who his murderers are. He made an ante-mortem statement, but the police have so far declined to divulge the contents. It is understood, however, that he refused to accuse anybody, stating that his uncle, with whom he lived, could tell anything he wished to concerning his actions Saturday night.
The uncle is one of the men now being held as a witness, and he is said to have been an actual witness of the shooting.

The entire police force have been working on the case ever since the murder occurred, and are making excellent progress. It is stated on good authority that Joe Veroni, the Alice street baker, while innocent of doing the actual killing, was concerned in an attempted robbery which resulted in the murder. He was shot, so the story goes, by the murdered man, who was endeavoring to protect himself from the attack of Veroni and another Italian, whose name cannot be learned, but who was arrested yesterday

MAY DRIVE OUT TURK

March of Allies Now Promises to Create History.

The Sultan's Forces Cannot Be Located by War Experts and It Is Declared That If the Advance of the Balkan Forces Is Not Checked the Turks Will Be Forced to Fall Back on Capital.

London, Oct. 29.—An interesting question at the present moment is the whereabouts of the Turkish army, of which nothing definite is known. The news that Eski Baba has been taken by the Bulgarian cavalry, apparently without resistance, shows that Nazim Pasha's army is not where it was supposed to have been—on the line between Kuleli Burgas to Lu'e Burgas.
It may be further west, in the direction of Demotica, but it is generally supposed that it has retired from the line of the railway and entrenched itself on the long line from Demotica to Toborlu.

Constantinople despatches continue to speak of the readiness of the Turkish army to take the offensive. In any case a few days must see something decisive.

The victorious Bulgarian army is still advancing. It has occupied Bun-arhisar and is marching toward Kuleli Burgas. It is reported that the Bulgarians have blown up a bridge over the Tohorlu river, showing that the turning movement is making rapid progress.

Unless the Turks are able to take the offensive vigorously the present indication is that they will be driven out of Europe altogether, failing interference by the powers at the present stage to end the war, as happened in the Russian campaign in 1823 and 1878, when Russia had captured Adrianople and was at the gates of Constantinople.

There have been renewed activities with regard to European intervention in the past few days and great diplomatic activity in London.

The Turkish ambassador had two hours' conference on Saturday at the French embassy and an important

Spiritualist on Trial.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—The state introduced its principal evidence yesterday in the trial of Mrs. Louise Lindloff, spiritualist, clairvoyant and crystal gazer, charged with poisoning her son, Arthur, and who, the prosecution asserts, predicted the deaths of the members of her family.

Dr. Walter S. Baines, toxicologist, testified that he found between three and four grains of a mineral poison, enough to cause death, in the body of Arthur Lindloff, the son of the defendant, and that he found the same drug in fatal quantities in the bodies of William Lindloff, one of Mrs. Lindloff's husbands, and of Alma Lindloff, her daughter.

"In my opinion all three members of the family died of poison," said Dr. Baines. He also testified that he had analyzed the powder in a box said to have been found in Mrs. Lindloff's house and found it to contain 80 per cent. mineral poison. The embalming fluid in the bodies, he said, contained no poison.

The undertaker who buried William Lindloff testified that Mrs. Lindloff told him that he would have another funeral at her home within a year. An insurance agent testified that the woman placed a $2,000 policy on the boy's life a few months before his death.

When the Kaiser Was Peeved.

They tell a story in Berlin about the Kaiser when he became a grandfather. He was in the yacht Hohenzollern off Norway at the time and only heard the news indirectly. Angry at not receiving a wire from home, he went ashore and there found a big pile of telegrams conveying congratulations. The first one opened was from the dethroned Sultan of Turkey, Abdul Hamid, and he immediately wired to his heir apparent, "I learn from the Sultan that your wife has had a son."

with regard to European intervention in the past few days and great diplomatic activity in London.

The Turkish ambassador had two hours' conference on Saturday at the French embassy and an important conference was held yesterday between Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary; Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty; and Lt.-Col. J. E. Seely, Minister for War. Then the Turkish, French, Russian and Italian ambassadors visited the Foreign Secretary who, afterwards, had an audience with the King at Buckingham Palace.

The news from other parts of the theatre of operations shows that the Turks everywhere are retiring before the victorious allies. The Turkish army, defeated at Kumanova, appears to be demoralized and has evacuated Kuprili or Veles, as it is also known, and is retiring on Monastir.

Communications Cut?

Sofia, Oct. 28.—The Bulgarian forces, according to advices received last night, have captured the towns of Lule Burgas and Demotica. It is also reported that the Turks are constructing earthenworks along the river Erkeno, west of Eski Baba.

It is stated that Bulgarian cavalry has succeeded in cutting communications between Adrianople and Constantinople and between Adrianople and Macedonia. The bridge over the Tohorlu river at Cherkesskoi has been blown up. It is understood that civilians leaving Adrianople are permitted to pass through the lines to the south.

The Turkish commander at Adrianople has been formally summoned to surrender the town. A second military train from Constantinople, loaded with flour, has fallen into the hands of the Bulgarians at Eski Baba.

HOW BLOOD IS MADE.

The liquids and the digested foods in the alimentary canal pass through the wall of the canal into the blood. This process is called absorption and takes place chiefly from the small intestine. After absorption the blood carries the food through the body, and each cell takes from the blood the food it needs. A pure glyceric extract made from bloodroot, mandrake, stone, queen's root and golden seal and sold by druggists for the past forty years under the name of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, gives uniformly excellent results as a tonic to help in the assimilation of the food and in the absorption by the blood of the food it requires. Eradicate the poisons from the blood with this alterative extract which does not shrink the white blood corpuscles, because containing no alcohol or other injurious ingredients. Thus the body can be built up—strong to resist disease. This is a tonic taken from Nature's garden that builds up those weakened by disease.

Dr. Pierce, founder of the Invalids' Hotel at Buffalo, N.Y., has received many letters similar to the following:

MR. FRED R. MUNRO, of Paradise, N.S., writes: "I take great pleasure in writing you as regards my case and its cure. In September I was taken with Typhoid Fever, which put me in a dreadful condition. I was weak, run down, nervous and was reduced to a mere skeleton. I had tried most everything I could get but nothing did me any good until, at last, I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and 'Pleasant Pellets,' which I did. Before I had used one bottle I saw a great improvement and when I had used this treatment two months, using only a few vials of 'Pleasant Pellets,' I returned to perfect health. I cannot find words to express my thankfulness for this wonderful medicine. I advise all sufferers to write to Dr. E. V. Pierce, as he cures when others fail."

THE PRETTY SAKADO.

New Empress of Japan Becomes a Goddess, Deified and Sacred.

The twentieth century, and a man and a woman are being made, all alive and breathing, into a god and goddess. Millions of people believe it; and a good many other millions, including probably the man and the woman themselves, have pretty strong doubts on the subject.

But hereafter they will be deities, the august and holy incarnations of all the virtues conceivable in the minds of their devotees, with peculiar and wondrous powers for good vested in their deified hands.

The man is the new Emperor of Japan; the woman is the blessed Sadako, his Empress, formerly Japan's crown princess.

The goddess Sadako began life some 27 years ago as a very small and daintily colored princess in one of the most ancient and honorable families of Japan, the Fujiwara; and her ancestors bossed the whole island from the seventh to the eleventh century. They were a sort of oriental series of Warwicks, running the throne and the Emperors and making it a regular habit to marry their superfluous daughters to the rulers of the land.

When, a dozen years ago, the lovely young Sadako was picked out to be the bride of the Crown Prince Yoshihito, she was only fifteen years old, as pretty as a picture by one of the famous old artists of Japan, including cherry lips, daintily angled eyebrows and the complexion of a peach shaded by pomegranates. They were in love with each other and fearful of the risk of mutual disappointment which they ran; but one day, while she was studying hard to pass up from the third grade of the High School, she was informed that her school days were about done, because his Imperial Majesty had been graciously pleased to content his august self in a daughter-in-law by choosing for his royal and glorious son a bride so humble and unworthy as she. At which pretty little Sadako rejoined that she was meekly grateful to have been singled out for so honorable and blissful a future and was ready for the nuptials.

When she was married, she proved precisely the wife such a crown prince, as sole heir to the throne, required. She has presented him with three healthy boys, so that there is now no anxiety as to the certainty of succession in the imperial line. She was prompt in responding to the

ANARCHIST TRICKS.

Few People Are Aware They Are All Smart Envelope Makers.

Nearly every anarchist can make envelopes. Set the average long haired terror of monarchs at a table with a sheet of paper and a bottle of gum, and you will be surprised at the skill and rapidity with which he will turn out a "superfine cream-aid" envelope.

No! it is not a practice of the bomb-throwing fraternity to make envelopes as a sort of spare-time industry with the proceeds of which to buy dynamite. They do so because the home-made envelope is the only kind that the most scientific detective cannot open without some trace of the operation.

In nearly every country where the possibility of armed risings or bomb outrage has to be reckoned with, there is a special department attached to the postoffice whose sole task is to open all the correspondence of revolutionaries and other political suspects.

The result of this is that leaders of the different revolutionary movements simply dare not correspond with each other direct. Private messengers over huge distances being too expensive, they generally make use of comrades whom they believe to be unknown to the police.

The chief difficulty is to be quite sure whether the intermediary is really free from police surveillance. And this can only be done by the daily dispatch of test packets. The ordinary seal has been proved useless as a means of testing whether the packets are opened, because the authorities long hit on the idea of eluting the unsealed sides of a package and welding the paper together by a special process, leaving the seal unbroken throughout.

But the special process involves the use of heat. And the gum that the anarchist uses to make his envelopes is of such a kind that, when heated, it turns red and remains so. He takes care that the gum shall lie all around the inside edges of the envelope so that it cannot possibly be opened and resealed without his knowledge.

The average peaceable citizen finds it hard to realize the enormous difficulties of the revolutionist who is compelled to use the post. It would be easy enough, one thinks, to arrange an alias for the recipient, while the sender could simply slip his missive in one of the many pillar-boxes in the city during the busiest hours of the day.

LAURIER'S WORK GOES ON

One of the most striking tributes to the constructive work of the Laurier Government as contrasted with the lack of initiative shown by the present Administration was given this week with the announcement of the finding in the now famous United Shoe Machinery Case. The Canadian law respecting combines, trusts and mergers has, on its first application, proven effective against one of the tightest monopolies the world has even seen, and one against which the laws of Great Britain, United States and Australia had proven ineffective.

There are many features which lend significance and importance to this case, not the least of which was the determined opposition made by this enormously wealthy trust. It is the first investigation held under the Combines Investigation Act, which was introduced by the Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King and enacted by the Laurier Government in 1909. This Act provides for a full investigation of large combines wherever there is prima facie ground for believing that such combines exist in restriction of trade or for undue enhancement of prices.

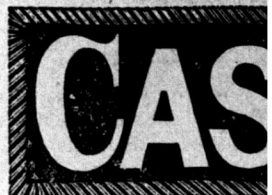

The United Shoe Machinery Trust has been before the courts of Great Britain, United States and Australia for some years without much result. In fact the Governments of these countries have passed legislation for the people's relief from the methods adopted by this great Combine, but all have proven unsuccessful.

It has remained for this measure of Laurier Administration to demonstrate that a means can be found for dealing with such combines through government investigation under circumstances which cannot be reached by the ordinary courts.

The methods of the United Shoe Machinery Company were thoroughly sifted during the investigation and have become fairly familiar. Their system was to acquire the most valuable patents on the essential machinery used in making shoes and then not to sell this machinery but to lease it to boots and shoes manufacturers under stringent conditions, restricting manufacturers from using any machinery manufactured outside of their shops. Any shoe manufacture breaking these conditions was practically driven out of business by the combine which in this way controlled all the best and most economical machinery and used this to monopolize the business.

Naturally a determined fight was made by the Combine to defeat investigation of their methods. It was the first case under the Combine Investigation Act, and they adopted every expedient which the most clever council could devise to prevent the investigation, even going so far as to attack the constitutionality of the law itself, and trying to prevent the then Minister of Labour from appointing a Board of Investigation. Hon. Mackenzie King fought the Trust at every stage on behalf of the people, and eventually the test case as to the constitutionality of the Act and its applicability to the Trust itself was carried to the Privy Council with the result that the British Law Lords held that the Canadian Minister of Labour had full power to order an investigation and that the law he had fathered was perfectly constitutional, and he was empowered to see that any such investigation was satisfactorily conducted, when the requirement of the Act as to the prima facie existence of precisely the wife such a crown prince, as sole heir to the throne, required. She has presented him with three healthy boys, so that there is now no anxiety as to the certainty of succession in the imperial line. She was prompt in responding to the changed conditions which began to prevail in Japan, and interested herself in the organization of women which arose and in the promotion of national charities. She displayed a pretty turn for poetry, without which a Japanese prince or princess would be as lost to the traditions of their station as a knight of old without his lady's ribbon.

Their household has all the simplicity of life that belongs to the old order of existence, almost extinct in the occident, but ideal for the health and training of future rulers. It is a very human and happy life, with the little home pleasures and the boyish fun that a trio of happy, hearty children can afford.

The new Empress and goddess succeeds to most of the powers and restrictions which prevented her predecessor, the deified Dowager Empress, from displaying any pronounced interest in the antics of common mortals. And she succeeds, too, to the imperial station that bids the wife and Empress regard with equanimity the right of her spouse to take a dozen other women to his heart.

But the man who is now Emperor of Japan, who is in theory, if not in practice, the source of all authority in the island empire, has hitherto been a model husband along the lines of the monogamous west. And, since he has heirs enough to the throne, it may be that the good destiny which has thus far guided pretty Sadako up to goddess-ship may have her happiness in its kindly keeping during the years to come.

Perfectly at Home.

"Is your bride timid and backward with your people?"

"Not a bit. She has already begun to teach sister how to look stylish and mother how to 'cook'."

Wrong Pitch.

In the course of her first call upon one of her husband's perishers young Mrs. Gray spoke feelingly of his noble, generous spirit.

"He is as nearly an altruist as man may be," she said proudly and affectionately.

"Is he an altruist?" said her hostess, with mild surprise. "I thought from the tone of his voice that he probably was a bass."

compelled to use the post. It would be easy enough, one thinks, to arrange an alias for the recipient, while the sender could simply slip his missive in one of the many pillar-boxes in the city during the busiest hours of the day.

But a known revolutionist in a place like Russia is practically never out of sight of the police. And a detective follows him or any of his family or servants as they come out of the house. If the suspects post a letter the detective immediately drops a plain scarlet card in the pillar-box. This catches the eye of the authorities and tells them that the contents of that box are to be searched.

Secret codes are practically useless. A systematic code has never been invented that an expert cannot unravel with comparative ease.

Naturally, the postal police are not exactly popular with anarchists and revolutionaries—with the result that the latter makes a regular hobby of causing their enemies as much trouble as their considerable ingenuity can devise.

Thus a favorite trick, when a man knows that his letters has been opened, is to sally forth with a number of letters in his pockets, the police spy following. He posts one letter—in goes the scarlet slip. A little further on and another letter is posted; likewise another scarlet slip. By the end of the morning some hundred or more pillar-boxes will have to be searched by the police.

After much tedious work they will find, in each bundle of letters, one letter apparently written in code. It will take their expert hours to make quite sure that the "code" is a mere meaningless jumble of figures, jotted down by the revolutionary for the sole purpose of causing trouble.

Sulphur.

Sulphur is a solid, nonmetallic mineral which has been known from earliest ages. It is hard, yellow and brittle and has a most offensive odor. It is found in veins or beds, mostly near active volcanoes. The imported sulphur generally comes from Solfatia, in Sicily, but large quantities are also procured from copper and iron pyrites. These minerals are heated, and the sulphur, being volatile, flies off in fumes, which are conveyed by means of pipes to a condensing room. If left in the powdery state in which it condenses it is called flour of sulphur. If melted and cast into bars it is called roll sulphur.

Nothing to Soften the Blow.

A west end woman called the attention of her husband to a little baby which was trying to sleep on the porch of its home on the opposite side of the street.

"It's lying on the bare boards, isn't it?" he observed.

"Yes; they haven't even placed a rug for the little chap to rest his head on."

had full power to order investigation and that the law he had fathered was perfectly constitutional, and he was empowered to see that any such investigation was satisfactorily conducted, when the requirement of the Act as to the prima facie existence of an illegal combine had been met.

The Privy Council having given its decision, the investigation committee, composed of Judge Laurendeau and J. C. Walsh, with W. J. White, K. C., all of Montreal, got down to the business of investigation and carried on their work at all the large centres of the shoe trade. Now after a most careful inquiry two reports have been brought in, the majority report signed by the Chairman of the Board Judge Laurendeau and Mr. J. C. Walsh, appointed as the representatives of the complainants is against the Company, and finds that it comes within the remedial clause prescribed by the Act, while a minority report is signed by Mr. W. J. White, K. C., the representative of the Company. There is little doubt that as a result of the investigation of the Trust will be compelled to alter its methods for the benefit of the public. In fact it is already intimated in the press that the Company has expressed its willingness to do this forthwith.

In presenting the measure to Parliament in 1910, the then Minister of Labour, Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, mentioned that there were certain evils which might be more easily rectified through judicious publicity than by legal penalty, and that the Act had been formed with this thing in view. The exposures of the Company's methods under investigation show how well the Act is devised toward this end.

The greatest problem of the present day is the increased cost of living, and it is generally believed that one of the most pernicious causes of the prevailing high prices is the artificial restraint of trade engineered by combines and monopolies. It is evident that the Canadian Combines Investigation Act is about the first really effective legal means yet devised to bring these combines to time. In having perfected so useful an instrument the Laurier Government has rendered the people of Canada one of the greatest services which it is possible for any Government to give the people a service which will ultimately be felt in their pockets.

WHAT ABOUT MONK

AND PELLETIER?

October 24th. Now that the uncertainty of the Hon. Mr. Monk's resignation from the coalition Conservative-Nationalist Cabinet has become an accomplished fact, a vast amount of speculation is being indulged in as to what the Nationalist members are going to do about it.

The Toronto Mail and Empire, the Ontario Government Organ, of the 20th inst., in an editorial on Hon. Mr. Monk's retirement, said that since Mr. Monk could not consistently, after his pre-election pledges, support an action decided upon by the Cabinet, his colleagues should be the last to censure him for withdrawing from the Government: a course which stamped him a man of honour and an adherent to constitutional practice. Proceeding the Mail and Empire said "Were Hon. Mr. Monk to remain in the Government after it had proceeded to act upon a policy against which he had declared himself, he would lose the respect he now has from men of all parties. We regret to say that politicians in office have not always been thus scrupulous and ministers in this Country have been known to cling to their portfolios after the Cabinet of which they were member had committed itself to a policy which they had repeatedly and openly condemned before their constituents. They ap-pire has exactly the same as was proper for Mr. Monk to Cabinet it was surely equal and necessary that Hon. Pelletier and Nantel should same. Hon. Messrs. Pell Nantel were elected on Nationalist platform, violated to any form of naval and, in the words of the Nationalist pledge "opposed Naval Policy of the Liberal Government and prepared to support request for repealing of the for a referendum to the matter who is premier," when pre-election speeches they opposed any Imperialist but even the establishment for the defence of Canada. Now they have apparently compunction in breaking the men who elected them a ing to the Mail and Empire "lose the respect of the parties," of course including own. No doubt the Co-Organ in the case of the Ministers, will preserve si forget to repeat "we regret that politicians in office have ways been thus scrupulous."

If it oper for Mr. Monk to leave the t it was surely equally proper necessary that Hon. Messrs. r and Nantel should do the Hon. Messrs. Pelletier and were elected on a straight interests. Not one of them had any particular need of the salary attached to the office, and they undertook the arduous work of remodelling the whole business of the Harbour more from a sense of patriotic duty than for personal profit. They devoted years of incessant labour to this work, while in at least one instance, more money has been spent by the occupant of the office than his salary amounted to, in furthering its work.

As soon as the agitation against them was commenced by the Tory spoilsmen, the Harbour Commissioners realized that they must make room for party friends so that the Tory Government would once again make the Harbour Commission a political machine. The agitation grew, but the business interests of Montreal fought it and representations were made by the Board of Trade, the Shipping Federation and La Chambre de Commerce, to the Government that it would be destructive to the best interests of the Port of Montreal to dismiss the three men who were doing such splendid work for it. In the face of such influential representations the efforts of the job-hunters failed for a time and the Tory axe was withheld, but the pressure continued. Finding it impossible to at once have the Commissioners dismissed the Conservative interests kept busy interfering with the work of the Commissioners with the idea of making things so disagreeable that they would resign. The Commissioners announced their intention of resigning as soon as their main programme of Harbour improvement was finished, which would be in less than a year from now. This did not satisfy the voracious appetites of those who wished to feed at the party trough. The pin-prick policy was kept up, and now, in disgust, the three Commissioners have sent in their resignations. This can have but one effect—the interference with the splendid work of harbour improvement carried on by the late commissioners, political bosses instead of business management and a return to the original state of affairs under which as a frank party organization the Harbour Board neglected the Harbour and ran things for political advantage.

It may be a vote producing chance but Montreal and the business of Canada's greatest Port will be the sufferers.

Sorel, Que., Oct. 25th.—Despite every effort of the Government the riding of Richelieu has remained faithful to Laurier and returned Mr. Cardin, the Liberal candidate by a majority of 301. While this is a reduction from the majority secured at the election of September 1911, it is a very satisfactory result. Richelieu includes the big government shipyards and works at Sorel, which employ many hundreds of voters, and every possible influence was used to induce these men to support the government candidate while the manner in which the axe has been wielded was a pretty strong hint of what would probably happen to any employee who dared to vote Liberal. Despite this Sorel gave a handsome majority for Mr. Cardin. And not only were there these handicaps to be overcome, but a deliberate attempt was made to bribe the whole riding by Sir Rodolphe Forget, who brought his election methods into the Campaign, and pledged his word that if Richelieu elected Morgan, the Conservative, the Marine Railway would be voted at next session, of course the inference being that if Cardin was elected there would be no vote for this railway, which is badly needed in the district.

That in face of such bulldozing and bribery the old riding of Richelieu should stand firm by Laurier is pretty good proof that the Province of Quebec is as solid as ever for Liberal principles.

The election has a double significance coming so shortly after the resignation of Hon. F. D. Monk, since, as usual in Quebec the Conservatives and Nationalists joined hands in an effort to defeat Mr. Cardin, while Sir Wilfrid Laurier, when he spoke at Sorel a few days before the election, denounced Monk and the Nationalists as unsparingly as he did the Borden end of the government. It was therefore a decided victory for the Liberals over the combined Nationalists and Conservatives.

An Important Order.

A rural postmaster tells this story of one of the patrons of his office, a boy of thrifty not to say penurious stock. When the lad comes into the postoffice he will thrust his wizened face up close to the window and in his slow Yankee drawl enquire most earnestly:

"Hev ye got any postal cards?"

"Yes," the postmaster replies.

"Haow much be they t'day?"

"A cent apiece."

Then the boy, screwing up his eyes in the intensity of his thought over the question he has to decide, always stops for awhile to weigh the consequences. Finally he will reply solemnly:

"Waal, I'll take one."

Fame's Brief Life.

One thing is certain in regard to fame—for most of us it will be very brief in itself; for all of us it will be transient in our enjoyment of it. When death has dropped the curtain we shall hear no more applause, and, though we fondly dream that it will continue after we have left the stage, we do not realize how quickly it will die away in silence while the audience turns to look at the new actor and the next scene. Our position in society will be filled as soon as it is vacated and our name remembered only for a moment except, please God, by a few who have learned to love us not because of fame, but because we have helped them and done them some good.—Henry van Dyke.

Dainty Dishes of the Papuans.

The Papuans eat extraordinary things. A particular delicacy is the white larvae of a beetle found in the decayed wood of a tree trunk. They split up the log with their mighty stone axes and cut up the fragments with sharpened shells in the quest of the larvae. Sometimes they eat them raw, but usually roast them first. "There are two kinds of water tortoises which they like to eat, and rats, lizards, frogs and snakes and the eggs of crocodiles they devour greedily." Their meat is the wild pig, the wallaby and the cassowary, all of which they hunt with dogs.—"Pygmies and Papuans."

When Men Wore Bustles.

"Bustles were ridiculous," said an antiquary. "Do you remember the bustle of 1885? It shot straight out from the waist, a broad seat on which, honestly, an adult could have sat. Yes, bustles were ridiculous, but no more ridiculous than the tournures of Francis II. The tournures were worn by men. They were bustles—front instead of rear ones. Yes, in the time of Francis II. portliness was considered stately, and men tied on tournures, or false stomachs, in order to achieve an air of dignity."

PURGATORY FIRES NOT YET, BUT SOON

Word Purgatory Not in the Bible,
But Teaching Is There.

Saintly of Present Time Few, Yet All Must Become Holy Ere They Will Be Granted "the Gift of God, Eternal Life, Through Jesus Christ."

Indianapolis, Oct. 27.—The world-renowned Pastor Russell is here. We report one of his discourses from the text: "Some men's sins go before to judgment, and some they follow after." (I. Timothy 5:24.) He said:

Gradually as the eyes of our understanding open to the true beauties of God's Word, we find that while the gross Error of the past has some foundation in the Truth, the two are very different. As Bible students allow the Word of God to interpret itself, their faith is strengthened as they find that the real teachings of the Bible are acceptable to sanctified common sense.

Wrong Views of Future Punishment.

Wrong views of future punishment have divided Christians into many sects. Our forefathers were not to blame. Ability to read was not common until within a century. Furthermore, for fifteen centuries the Bible was out of the hands of the people and clerical zeal had tried to bring the whole world, through fear, into the church. Now, all thinking people repudiate the torment theories, and many are turning away from the creeds, and also from the Bible, the supposed foundation for the creeds.

The trend of to-day is toward Higher Criticism, and Evolution. In France, it is claimed ninety-six per cent. of the people have lost all faith in religion; in Germany ninety per cent. How important that the people should see that the Bible presents a just and loving God; that He has made generous provision for all through Christ, and that He will bring all to a knowledge of Christ; that every wilful sin must bear its reasonable and just penalty, either in the present or in the future life! The Christian's duty is to lift up the Bible.

The subject of future punishment is most important; with the head wrong, the heart and the morals cannot remain right. The people should know respecting the word Hell in the original Scriptures—that the word Sheol of the Old Testament represents the Bible teaching of Hell for the first four thousand years, and that Hades in the New Testament means the same; that these words do not stand for torture, but for the state of death, and are usually translated grave and pit. In old-time English the word Hell was a synonym of pit and grave. Humanity are redeemed from Sheol, the grave, by the death of Christ, and Sheol, Hades, the grave, shall be destroyed during Messiah's reign. (Hos. 13:14; Isa. 25:8; I. Cor. 15:54, 55.)

OUR WHITE ESKIMO

THE LOST TRIBE IN THE NORTH
— HAVE QUEER HISTORY.

Explorer Stefansson Is Convinced
the Two Thousand People Found In the Arctic Circle of Canada Are Descendants of "Lief Lucky," Who Migrated From Iceland About the Year 1,000.

Further details are now arriving concerning the discovery in the far north of Canada made by Prof. Vilhjalmur Stefansson of a lost tribe of white people who are believed direct descendants of the follow Lief Erickson (Lief the Lucky) went to Greenland from Iceland the year 1,000 and later discovered north coast of America.

The people living on Victoria thirty degrees east of the mouth of the Mackenzie river, more than miles by the coast line, are said to be the stone age. While the civilization of nearly 1,000 years has grown have stood still.

The tribe of white people, whom Stefansson declares are purely of European origin, never had seen people of their own color. Their number is about 2,000. More than half of them have red hair, blue eyes, light skins and light eyebrows and blond hair. They live on both shores of the Columbia gulf, on the mainland of America and Victoria island, formerly known as Prince of Wales Island.

It was for this people that Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole, searched while making his journey through the northwest passage.

Amundsen, it will be remembered, said natives had told him of the existence of white people living to the northward. He sent an expedition to the shore of the island, but saw nothing of the tribe, nor did they see anything of him.

Many other Arctic explorers brought down from the north stories of this tribe of lost white people, the tale came to be regarded as Indian legend.

Ethnologically, the newly-discovered tribe is entirely different from the Eskimo, not only in the shape of the skull, but in general features, color of eyes and texture of hair. They show not a single trace of the Mongolian type.

While they retain some of the customs of the Norsemen who were from Iceland in the twelfth century, their method of living is entirely different. The conditions under which they live are of the most primitive sort. No vegetation, except moss and a few stunted willows, grows in the habitat.

They are meat and fish eaters. The island abounds with caribou and other fauna. They use bows made of willow boughs together with sinews and their arrows are tipped with flint and native bone, which is pried out of ledges found in stream beds on the mainland. Their knives are made of copper, horn handles, and made in much the same manner as implements made by the early Norsemen who inhabited Greenland.

Like nearly every savage tribe have a legend of a flood which a time ago devastated the world. Anthropologists say, is universal among savage tribes and

Dr. Hennequin's Infant Tablets saved our little girl's life. Three doctors said she could not live. The Tablets cured her.—MR. E. R. McBRIDE, Napanee, Ont.

My baby was so weak from sickness that he could hardly walk. We thought he would die. We could find nothing to help him. I was given a sample package of three Hennequin Tablets; we used them; I saw a change at once. We secured the Tablets and our baby improved every day and is now a bright, fat, good natured boy; you could not believe he was the same child. They certainly cured my baby and saved his life. I believe them to be the best medicine ever sold for babies. Mothers if your babies are not well take my advice and try these Tablets.—MRS. JAMES RIDDELL, Barrydale, Ont.

hell was a synonym of pit and grave. Humanity are redeemed from Sheol, the grave, by the death of Christ, and Sheol, Hades, the grave, shall be destroyed during Messiah's reign. (Hos. 13:14; Isa. 25:8; I. Cor. 15:54, 55.)

Gehenna fire means as all scholars understand, the garbage-furnace valley outside Jerusalem; it is symbolic of the complete destruction of the finally impenitent.

Purgatorial Fires of the Bible.

These are symbolical — for the Church in this Age, for the world in the next Age. The Church is now on trial for everlasting life or everlasting death. The world's purgatorial period will be under the supervision of the Church. (I. Cor. 6:2.)

St. Peter tells of purgatorial fires which now are purifying the saints: "Think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which shall try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you." (I. Pet. 4:12, 13.) Jesus referred to these experiences; read I. John 3:13; John 15:18; Matt. 16:24.

St. Paul says that Christ "learned obedience by the things which He suffered," and that "if we suffer with Him we shall also reign with Him"; that "our light affliction worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." (II. Cor. 4:17.)

These persecutions come from those who profess to be God's people. "The world," which persecuted Jesus, was made up of Scribes and Pharisees and Doctors of the Law. He forewarned His followers. "A man's foes shall be they of his own household."

St. Paul points out that in the end of this Age fiery trials will come upon the Church. "The fire of that day shall try every man's work of what sort it is." Faith built with the gold, silver and precious stones of Divine Truth will come forth unscorched. Jesus declared to the Church, "Through much tribulation shall ye enter the Kingdom."

The world's purgatory will begin with a severe ordeal upon all mankind but will continue in instructive tribulation upon all needing the same.

The "fires" will be symbolical. The New Age will be ushered in by "a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation." (Daniel 12:1.) Jesus declares that unless that trouble were checked no flesh could be saved; but because of the Elect, those days shall be shortened. The Messianic Kingdom will end the strife and anarchy.

St. Peter used the symbolism of the Psalms in describing these troubles. The "sea" represents the restless peoples; the solid "land"—earth—represents the social structure, whose "mountains" are the Kingdoms and whose "heavens" are the ecclesiastical powers.

The Lord pictures mankind anxious to know and obey the Truth. "Then will I turn unto the people a pure message, that they may call upon the name of the Lord to serve Him with one consent." (Zeph. 3:9.)

"MORRISON OF CHINA"

BRITISH DOCTOR IS THE CENTRE OF INTERNATIONAL INTEREST.

Correspondent of The Times Who Has Been Suddenly Lifted From the Narrow Fame of His Journalistic Circle and Made Political Adviser to the President of China Is a Man of Great Capacity.

There is a widespread impression in England that things are in a bad way in the young Chinese Republic. We have heard so much of internal strife, of division between south and north of outbreaks, and of coming foreign aggression that the man in the street can almost see, in his mind's eye, the country already divided, the Republic at an end, and the most wonderful political and social experiment of our generation brought to ruin.

A talk with Dr. Morrison, Pekin correspondent of The Times and Political Adviser-elect to the President of the Chinese Republic, is a good cure for such pessimism. Dr. Morrison has a robust faith in the future of the commonwealth and a fund of indignation for the men who have been systematically spreading evil reports against it. He returned to England recently for a brief spell before taking up his new duties. He left China steadily settling down, with the authority of the Central Government surely growing, with trade everywhere reviving, and with the unweilding armies of the revolution being gradually disbanded and absorbed in the civil population.

The story of how Dr. Morrison came to be called to the inner councils of the young republic is interesting.
Early this summer he had made up his mind to leave China and return to his native Australia. He had served his paper in Pekin for fifteen years.
He had, as we all know, earned wide-world recognition as the first foreign correspondent and as the premier living authority on Chinese affairs. But he was wearied, I shrewdly suspect, of being always the observer and recorder. So he was going home, pos-

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 23.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Oct. 23 were 2100 cattle, 4000 sheep and lambs, 1850 hogs and 650 calves, while the offerings on the market this morning for sale amounted to 1750 cattle, 2875 sheep and lambs, 1300 hogs and 625 calves.

Owing to the limited supply of good to choice cattle coming forward a stronger feeling prevailed, prices being 25c per 100 pounds higher.

The demand for choice steers was good,
and sales of full carloads weighing 1250 pounds each, were made at $5.55, and good steers, averaging from 1100 to 1200 pounds each, brought $5 to $5.25, and other sales of mixed stock were put thru at $5 to $5.50 per 100 pounds. The demand from cannery for supply was large, and prices ruled lower, a from $2 to $3 per 100 lbs.
A good trade was done in choice butcher

sibly to take his part in public life there. His famous library was announced for sale.

Word of this reached President Yuan Shi Kai and his Cabinet. They sent him what, in my opinion, is the most remarkable invitation ever received by a European: Would he remain as Political Advisor to the Government? The spirit in which the invitation was tendered is best shown by the letter from the official confidential secretary to the President conveying the invitation.

"It (the formal document of the appointment) is neither an agreement, nor yet a contract, nor yet a compact. It is a free and spontaneous invitation from the Government and people of the Chinese Republic. It is the most honorable invitation ever extended by China to a foreign gentleman and expressed in the most courteous language possible, as shown by the characters used."

I asked Dr. Morrison about the reported opposition in various quarters to his appointment, particularly from Germany.

"With regard to German opposition," he replied, "nothing could be more incorrect. In no other part of the world do Germans and English work more cordially together than in China. Their interests are alike commercial. They are associated in great loans, loans to the amount of many millions sterling, and in great railway works. The chief British bank has four German directors on its board. There is trade rivalry between Germany and England in China, but the people of no two nations in China work together more harmoniously. An immense number of British enterprises employ German agents, even the great house of Armstrong."

My next question about President Yuan Shi Kai and about the reports which have been spread in England of his physical and mental breakdown.

"I left Peking less than three weeks ago," Dr. Morrison replied. "I saw the President several times during the week or two before I left. I found him fit, in excellent spirits, and hopeful of the future, especially if he could come to terms regarding the much-needed foreign requisite for the reorganization of the Government. There is no truth whatever in the reports of his breakdowns."

"He was the indispensable man who brought about the peaceful retirement of the Manchu. The greatest blow he received was on February 29, when the troops of the Third Division mutinied and looted considerable portions of property but little loss of life. He has overcome that blow. The man who can calmly continue to smoke a cigarette during a bomb outrage that nearly killed him and killed some of his bodyguard near him is not a man to be easily dismayed."

FOR HOUSEHOLD ACCIDENTS

Zam-Buk is so Very Useful.

Read how Beneficial It Proved in this case.

Mrs. H. Sawyer, of Keene, Ont., writes: "My husband is engaged on a farm, and one day, while chopping wood, the top of the axe broke and fell upon his foot, cutting a nasty gash. The wound was so bad that we first thought we would have to get a doctor, but we finally decided to dress the cut with Zam-Buk."

Well the Zam-Buk treatment proved a great success. It not only eased the pain, but it prevented any inflammation; and right from first applying Zam-Buk, the cut began to heal. It is now completely healed and my husband says he will never be without a box of Zam-Buk in the house, for we are sure it saved us a great deal of expense."

Over and over again Zam-Buk has been proved to be the worker's best remedy. As soon as applied to a cut, a burn, a scald, or any skin injury, it relieves the pain and it sets up healing. It also prevents blood-poisoning, or inflammation. It is a sure cure too for eczema, piles, ulcers, old wounds, bad leg, ringworm, scalp sores, festering, running sores, eruptions, cold sores, chapped hands, etc. Its purity, also, makes it the ideal balm for babies.

Zam-Buk Soap should be used along with the balm for washing all sore places. This soap will be found excellent for baby's bath, even where the balm is not being used.

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c box, and Zam-Buk Soap at 25c tablet, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

The demand from canners for canning stock was good, of which the supply was large, and prices ruled lower, at from $2 to $3 per 100 lbs. A good trade was done in choice butcher cows at $5 to $5.35 per 100 pounds.

Sheep and lambs were strong and prices upward. The demand from packers was good for supplies, and butchers also bought freely. Ontario lambs sold at $6 to $6.25, and Quebec at $5.75, while ewes brought $3.75 to $4 per 100 pounds. A fairly active trade was done in calves at 2½c to 3c for grass-fed and 5c to 7c per pound for milk-fed.

Railway Men at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—A committee representing the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees had another interview with the Labor Department Saturday relative to the disagreement between 5,000 members of the brotherhood, who are employees of the C.P.R., and the road itself, over wages and overtime. The Labor Department on Friday refused to grant a board of conciliation, but the union men hope, as a result of further representations, to induce it to change its decision.

"We still have hopes," said President Mosher.

Belleville, Oct. 29.—Ex-Mayor Borget of this city yesterday met with painful injuries. While picking apples he fell from a tree, breaking his shoulder-blade and sustaining other injuries.

Easier to Carry.

There was an old Scotchman in Glasgow who was moving from one house to another on the same street. Being of an economical turn of mind, he had moved his bits of furniture on the wheelbarrow himself. The last thing left for him to carry was one of those old grandfather's clocks. It was rather heavy and awkward to handle. As he toddled up the street to his new home with grandfather's clock over his shoulder he met a friendly Scot who had been imbibing. "Tak ma' advice," said the intemperate one, "buy yersel' a watch."

ROSY CHEEKS THIS YEAR.

Damp Weather Has Been a Boon to the Womenfolk.

Canadian ladies' faces have always been charming, and the Dominion has been noted for its beautiful women. In spite of the high standard, however, an improvement has lately been noticed. A gradual, alluring change has been at work, a subtle, unthought-of influence, and, lo, our girls are more ravishing than ever. It isn't that their features have been altered; nor is it the result of a closer attention to the laws of beauty. The change has come in the complexion, and the good fairy is something which the beneficiaries have hated and execrated. Such is the peculiar method of that unfathomable goddess, Nature herself, says a writer in The Toronto Star.

That rain and dampness are the best "creams" for the complexion is easily capable of proof owing to universal example. The Canadian complexion always has been rather good, because this country has rarely been afflicted with long periods of drought. Except by the most prejudiced, however, it has been agreed that the English complexion is more ideal than the one typical of Canada. Occasionally, of course, the English face coloring is too pink and almost borders on the florid. But the average should be the basis of comparison, and this method awards the palm to Great Britain's daughters.

The reason? Undoubtedly, the humidity and dampness of the British Isles. The air of France is clearer and drier; it probably quickens the intellect, but it dulls the cheeks. For this summer, Canada has been England at its very dampest, and our women are now the possessors of the same delicately-hued, silk-like skin.

The effect of the climate on the complexion is nowhere more graphically illustrated than in Western Canada. The present flood conditions have prevailed on the prairies also this season, but usually the air in that region is remarkably dry. It is one of the chief advertisements of the West, and is extolled in all real estate advertisements, and praised by every man, who feels his blood tingle more vigorously and his mind act more briskly. The women, however, either keep silent or openly complain. They know that their complexion is suffering, and that only the wholesale use of lotions and a periodical visit to a damper climate will prevent their skin drying and cracking.

Travel a few hundred miles further, to the British Columbia coast, and see the difference. After living on the prairies for a year, it is almost start-

W. M. S. CONVENTION

TAMWORTH DIVISION OF NAPANEE DISTRICT.

(Crowded out last week)

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Tamworth Division, Napanee District, met in Annual Convention, on Thursday, Oct. 17th, 1912, in the Methodist Church at Newburgh.

The morning session was opened with a short song service, Bible reading and prayer, led by the pastor, Rev. C. W. DeMille.

Mrs. J. A. Wartman, District Organizer, presided, with Mrs. E. J. Wagar, District Secretary. Mrs. J. Paul and Mrs. Wagar were appointed Press reporters.

At the roll call the following Auxiliaries, Circles and Bands responded:

	Annual members	Life members
10 Auxiliaries with	279	36
3 Circles with.....	125	15
6 Bands with.....	324	12
Total membership	728	63
An increase over last year of.....	102	12

The total amount raised on the District since May is $354.47, which also shows an increase.

All the reports were full of interest and most encouraging. Every Auxiliary without exception had enlarged its borders and increased in strength. Many new plans for the winter were given, crusades arranged, etc.

The Organizer's Report showed a busy year. One new Auxiliary, one Circle and three new Mission Bands stand to her credit.

By a happy chance the paper which followed this report was entitled "Mission Band Helps," by Miss Pearl Nesbitt, Napanee, and was surely an inspiration to the leaders of these new bands. Miss Nesbitt said that the first requisite in Band work was a real live leader. One with a purpose who did not hesitate to give herself, time or ability to the cause. Get every member busy, for children cannot begin in this work too young. Make every member feel that he really counts. This is a high tribute to the child and brings out his highest and best qualities.

Have good programs. Good music and good singing tone up the meeting. Let the organist be always a member of the Band, and change regularly giving all the members who play an opportunity to develop this talent, even the performance be crude at the beginning.

Teach systematic giving. In this day every child has his own spending money. Try to make them see that it is as much fun to put a part of it in the Missionary Mite-Box as to spend it selfishly. The greatest help perhaps in Band work is punctuality. Always begin on time. See that they all get to meeting on time, and keep them right on the dot. Provide good literature. Every boy and girl enjoys good readings. A little magazine that is in great demand at present in Bands is "Everyland," which is published quarterly. Boom your Mission Band if you want it to be a success. A good thing advertises itself. A good way to advertise it is to invite visitors to attend the meetings.

Immediately following this paper came a delightful chorus given by several little girls of the Newburgh Mission Band, which was greatly enjoyed by all.

Mrs. C. W. DeMille, of Newburgh,

we may look them square face and take counsel together come them. Our hindrances in different ways. A river hard to navigate because of rapids or its channel may but the water low. So in work we find "natural" International and racial heathen customs and modes of life perhaps the hindrances are because of "low water" in the heart. The faith that car mountains may have dwelt shallow cream, and no great be done because of our unbelief first class of hindrances, the obstacles, can only be removed by time, legislation, prayer, leaven of civilization and Oh!

Everything that should be neglected is a hindrance. Training causes much of water in missionary work, men and workers both at home and abroad. How many boys are brought up to look upon a missionary as a possible. How many mothers are will vote one child to the advance the Lord's army? How many are there where no Mission exists? And yet we are to Mission Band Superintendent great a work as the mission field. We must work for the Educate boys and girls to-day men and women of to-morrow complain of lack of interest. Interest is simply lack of knowledge? How do we conduct election campaign? The world is sowed with literature do likewise. There is abundant missionary literature at prices.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Travel a few hundred miles further, to the British Columbia coast, and see the difference. After living on the prairies for a year, it is almost startling to drop into Vancouver some afternoon, and to go down to the docks where crowds of gaily-dressed women are waiting for the coast steamers to take them for a trip to Victoria. The ladies' faces are like roses, the dainty pink roses blooming in the innumerable Vancouver gardens. The rain has done it all.

Perhaps our girls here will never have as good an opportunity again as they have had during this wet summer. They should realize, however, the real blessings of damp weather, and should determine to take every possible advantage from even infrequent rains in the future. The trouble is that Ontario women don't know how to act in wet weather. When they see the clouds roll up and the sky darken, they mumble and grumble about not being able to go out. They avoid the rain like a plague; they will run for a block to get away from it. Rather should they welcome it, and rush out to meet it.

Aged Nova Scotia Woman.

The annual report of the Deputy Registrar-General giving the vital statistics of Nova Scotia has just been published. This report furnishes remarkable evidence of longevity. 1,219 persons reached an age of 80 or over, an increase of 202 over the previous year. This amounts to 14.8 per cent. of those who died. One woman in Antigonish County died at the age of 104 and another woman in the same county reached the remarkable age of 120. This is the most advanced age yet recorded in Nova Scotia and a special enquiry by the Department of Vital Statistics substantiated its authenticity. Two men died at 102; one in Cape Breton county the other in Halifax county. A man in Hants county died at the same age. A woman in Pictou county reached the age of 100 years and five months. One man in Guysboro county and one woman in Victoria county completed lives which filled a century.

A Perpetual Sacred Fire.

In the peninsula of Abeheron, formerly belonging to Persia, but now a part of Russia, there is a perpetual or, rather, what the natives call an eternal sacred fire, which is known to have been burning continually for more than 2,000 years. It rises from an irregular orifice of about twelve feet in depth and 120 feet square. The flames, which are constant, rise to a height of from six to eight feet, unaccompanied by smoke or disagreeable smell, waving back and forth with the wind like a field of golden grain.

Men and Children First.

The Chinese point of view of maritime disasters is peculiar. The duty of a Chinese sailor is well defined. He must save the men first, then the children and finally the women. This is on the theory that men are most valuable to the state, that adoptive parents can be found for children and that women without husbands are destitute.

Two Ways.

"Joe says Mae treats him like a dog."

"Ah, but is the treatment general or particular?"

"What do you mean?"

"Does she treat him like her dog?"

Immediately following this paper came a delightful chorus given by several little girls of the Newburgh Mission Band, which was greatly enjoyed by all.

Mrs. C. W. DeMille, of Newburgh, gave a very forcible paper on "Systematic Giving," showing clearly our responsibility as to how we should give.

Every business man and every careful, sensible housewife use system in managing their affairs, taking account of where all money comes from and where it goes, always looking ahead to be able to supply coming needs. And then she asks "if this is necessary or wise in things material, why not in matters relating to the coming of the Kingdom of God?" God's plan in nature is one of perfect system. He takes note of the smallest as well as the greatest events in His world, for "not a sparrow falleth with he knoweth it," and "even the hairs of our head are numbered." All this goes to show that God has some definite plan for financing His Kingdom upon earth.

From beginning to the end of the Scriptures we find that God claims one tenth as His portion of all that He has entrusted to us of His own.

Before Jewish history the Divine Law of the "tithes" was more universal than any other Divine law. The Book of Genesis is but a brief history of long ages, giving only the most important facts, and yet the law of "tithing" was twice mentioned in it. Jewish history shows that one tenth of everything was holy unto the Lord. Some may say that this was in old testament times and does not apply to the present, but it is not so. Christ came to fulfil the law not to destroy it. No law of beneficence was repealed. Then, tithing brings material blessing. "Honour the Lord with thy substance and the first fruits of all thine increase, so shalt thy barns be filled with plenty. This motive may be an inferior one but God appeals to us through it in urging us to duty. A tenth of our money is not enough. What about our time? She who would be at her best must give of her all. Some one asks "Must I give the tenth of everything, or are expenses to be taken out?" Just how this giving is to be done must be decided according to the New Testament Spirit. It is an offering of love. God looketh at the heart. He knows, and we know, that the measuring of a tenth is largely a matter of honesty. We should not try to drive a hard bargain with our Redeemer. Mrs. DeMille closed by saying that if any of us find our love measured by "money" standards, she would reply to the question, "Would a man rob God," to remember the admonition, "Bring ye the whole tithes into the store house." If you err, let it be on the right side, and you all know on which side that is.

The discussion which followed this paper brought out many useful suggestions from those who follow Systematic Giving and have tried to introduce it to others.

Mrs. J. A. Wartman was unanimously re-elected as Organizer for the coming year.

In loving words Mrs. Price welcomed the delegates, who expressed their thanks by singing a hymn.

Rev. M. DeMille closed the morning session with the benediction.

The afternoon session opened with a consecration service led by Mrs. George Wartman. It was an hour of spiritual uplift and a fitting prelude to the afternoon's work.

"Hindrances to Mission Work" was the subject of the paper prepared and read by Mrs. J. W. Wagar, of Centreville. This paper appealed in a special way to every member present.

Mrs. Wagar said it was not at all in a pessimistic spirit that we stop to count up our difficulties, but only that look them squarely in the face and take counsel together to overcome them. Our hindrances are caused by wrong ways. A river may be navigable because of rocks and or its channel may be open water low. So in missionary work we find "natural" obstacles. Social and racial problems, customs and modes of thought, all these hindrances are caused by "low water" in the worker's life. The faith that can "remove mountains" may have dwindled to a mere stream, and no great work can be done because of our unbelief. The hindrances, the natural obstacles, can only be removed by legislation, prayer and the influence of civilization and Christianity. The hindrance of our attitude toward the missionary. If we slip we must enter into their lives and study all their problems. We must try to understand their homesick pain, remembering adjusting of their mental and nature to meet new conditions and strange peoples. They wait for the missionary's hand which must be reaped from hearts made dull and hopeless by superstition and ignorance. These missionaries do not ask but they do ask our prayers. A hindrance that should be a help, if it is a hindrance. Lack of money causes much of the "low water" in missionary work. We lack workers both at home and abroad. How many boys and girls grow up to look upon the life of a missionary as a possible "career"? Many mothers are willing to send their child to the advance guard of the Christian army? How many places are there where no Mission Band exists? And yet we are told that a Band Superintendent does as much work as the missionary on the field. We must work for the future, for the boys and girls to-day and the women of to-morrow will not be lacking in interest. Lack of a simply lack of knowledge. How do we give the people the knowledge? J. who said that the chief object of the Watch-Tower was to place every of the Auxiliary in possession of necessary information with one each of our four fields of every month. The Watchman have a thorough understanding of the work expected of her, and then the appointment as a "watchman" an honour to the member could be acknowledged by care for her work.

A produced watch tower is one of the most difficult things to have in. We all know that it is plan than to perform. It is to write down a beautiful paper, but quite another to reduce to actual practice.

We need in our watchmen the of discerning the important. We need brevity. We need to will do the work as "unto", if we wish the watch-tower access.

Our work be to spread the lands beyond the sea, or only faithful watchman, matters long as it is done in singleness of heart "fearing the Lord."

ion in the home" was the of the interesting two-minute by Mrs. J. S. McMullen, of not need to be told that it is to provide food and clothing children and to educate them. It is more important to provide spiritual food.

er we do not need to rely on instinct, for God has expressed and family worship, and we have scriptural examples of how and prospered those who ough the Old and New Testaments have examples of the building altars.

ly worship is observed once a day our children will hear the Word of God 365 times a year and in ten years over three thousand times. This influence in moulding the character of children, say from five to fifteen years of age, must be very great.

The most common excuse for the neglect of family worship is the lack of time. We have examples from the farthest back ages right down to the present that men and women who carried the greatest burdens, the busiest men in political and business have been those who found time to have two seasons of family worship every day.

We also have the promise that "He that waits on the Lord shall not want any good thing."

The discussions were entered into freely and many of the thoughts expressed will help to overcome some of the difficulties that confront us.

One of the most pleasing features of the convention was the exercise given by the Newburgh "Boys' Band" under the leadership of Rev. Mr. DeMille.

Echoes from the Board Meeting by the Branch Cor. Sec'y., Mrs. A. W. Grange, was perhaps the part of the program to which all looked most eagerly forward. In the report we learned not only of the Work Branch but in each of the eleven Branches of our church reaching from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

It was interesting to know that our Bay of Quinte Branch came fourth on the list as to finances.

Every Branch Secretary reported a successful year, all showing increase of Auxiliaries, Circles and Bands, increase in membership and income.

In the Bay of Quinte Branch there are 1192 Auxiliaries, 292 Circles and 512 Bands.

A combined membership of 63,717 women, young ladies and children of Canadian Methodism banded together in earnest effort for the evangelization of the women and children in heathendom.

The Treasurer also reported a record year. The total amount raised by all the Branches being $146,483.00. Other items of income being the grand total to $172,388.00, an increase over last year of $34,485.00. In all its thirty years of existence never before was so great an increase reported.

It would be impossible to give any adequate idea of the work accomplished by our consecrated missionaries. The story of the year will take up many pages in the Annual Report which will be published next month, and which should find its way into the hands of every Auxiliary member.

Briefly summed up the missionaries supported by the W. M. S. are as follows:

65 in the Home Fields, 32 in Japan, who have now 399 native helpers in the employ of our Society. In China the W. M. S. supports 27 missionaries whose work this past year has been one of interrupted plans and delayed projects, owing to the disturbed state of the country.

Through all the report there runs a strain of gratitude that the lives of our missionaries have been protected, and that so far as known the property of both the General Board and that of the W. M. S. has been unharmed.

Though the work in China seems at a standstill all the workers are very hopeful in their vision of the future and sanguine in their belief that this revolution has accomplished more for the Kingdom of God than could have been done by many decades of missionary effort.

The Easter offering of the Auxiliaries this year goes to the Extension Fund for new buildings in all fields. The offering from Circles and Bands will be used for Medical work in China.

The Watchword will be the same as for last year, "Not by might nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts."

At the close of this paper all joined in singing "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

Mrs. Grange took charge of the Question and threw light on many questions of interest to the different Auxiliaries.

The thanks of the Convention are tendered the ladies of Newburgh and Wesley, (for the kind reception given to delegates and visitors), and to all who helped to make the Convention a success.

Dinner and tea were served in the Sunday School room, which were beautifully decorated for the occasion.

The proceeds of the day amounted to $36.33.

All the exercises tended to enthuse and inspire those who listened.

After singing Hymn 131 Rev. Mr. McMullen closed with prayer and benediction, one of the most profitable Conventions ever held in this district.

A New Way to Make a Will

It Will Save Many a Dollar

Many people hesitate to make a will because they think of expensive lawyer's fees. Everyone should make a will, but many think that they have not enough to leave. All such classes of people should now find no objection to performing this one of the most sacred duties of life, because it is now possible to make an absolutely legal will, unbreakable in any court of the land, in the privacy of your own home, by yourself alone, for the ridiculously small sum of 35c.

Copyrighted at Ottawa, we find the Bax Legal Will Form—a form tested by some of the best legal talent in Canada and found to be unbreakable—so simple that it can be made by any person without legal assistance and yet be a perfect will.

Anyone may obtain this form by sending 35c to the Bax Will Form Co., Room 234, 280 College street, Toronto. With this will form is sent full directions and a sample will, so that anybody will have no difficulty whatever in executing the document properly.

You should make a will and you should do it now. A week from now you may keenly regret not having acted when you read this article. Send for your Will Form now.

Sold by all druggists and stationers and also may be obtained from A. E. Paul, Napanee.

Mere Trifles.

"Folks all well this morning, Tommy?" asked a friend of the family.

"Yes'm," replied Tommy.

"I am glad to hear it. The last time I heard from them your papa was suffering from rheumatic gout and your mamma had neuralgia."

"Oh, yes, they've still got 'em. I thought you meant was any of us sick."

More Safety for Steamers.

Berlin, Oct. 29.—New rules for ocean going steamships were approved yesterday at a conference held at the Ministry of the Interior, at which representatives of the German Ministries, the Federal Council and the shipping interests were present. The new rules have been adopted as the basis of Germany's attitude at the international conference to be held in London.

They deal with the question of bulkheads, lifeboats, wireless telegraphy and the reporting of icebergs. All passenger steamers carrying 75 persons, including the crew, and freighters carrying a crew of sixty, must in future be equipped with wireless telegraphy having a radius of 100 sea miles.

These vessels must also carry a certain proportion of skilled oarsmen to man the life boats.

The regulations as to bulkheads have been thoroughly amended.

Fireman Killed at Belleville.

Belleville, Oct. 29.—A fatal accident occurred at the G.T.R. yards here yesterday afternoon, the victim being Matthew Barker, a fireman in the employ of the railway. Cars were being shunted, when Barker looked out of the window of the engine and his head came in contact with a car on a nearby siding. The victim received such terrible injuries that he died almost immediately. He was a middle-aged man, residing in this city. An inquest will be held.

Veteran G.T.R. Employee Killed.

St. Thomas, Oct. 29.—Robert Edgar, aged 60, an employee in the Grand Trunk Railway, Wabash yards, St. Thomas, was killed instantly yesterday afternoon, while attending to his duties in the locomotive department.

Edgar was struck by a passenger train and thrown in front of a passing engine, which passed over him. He was one of the oldest employees in the G.T.R. service, and is survived by a widow and grown up family.

Coroner Dr. Guest will hold an inquest to-day.

Rev. J. R. Dickson Better.

Galt, Oct. 29.—The condition of Rev. J. R. Dickson, D.D., Ph.D., pastor of Central Presbyterian Church, who collapsed in the pulpit Sunday morning, shows signs of improvement. Three physicians in attendance report that the patient is resting easily.

Mills Is Elected.

Berlin, Oct. 29.—The large majority of 1,400 was rolled up yesterday for Charles H. Mills, the Conservative candidate in the bye-election to fill the vacancy in the Ontario Legislature.

Didn't Like Results.

"That thunderstorm certainly was a joke."

"I didn't see the joke."

"Didn't you?"

"No. I think the weather man is taking himself entirely too seriously."

Modern Kind.

"He married her by contract."

"How was that?"

"Had an agreement to separate peacefully if they couldn't agree."

"That is what you might call a safety match."

THE THREE GUARDSMEN

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS

He was introduced.

"I am at home to nobody," said milady. "Observe, to nobody."

D'Artagnan cast an inquiring glance at milady. She was pale, and her eyes looked red, either from tears or want of sleep. The number of lights had been intentionally diminished.

D'Artagnan approached her with his usual gallantry. She then made an extraordinary effort to receive him, but never did a more distressed countenance give the lie to a more amiable smile. She asked D'Artagnan if he had a mistress.

"Alas!" said D'Artagnan, with the most sentimental air he could assume. "Can you be cruel enough to put such a question to me—to me, who from the moment I saw you have only breathed and sighed by you and for you!"

Milady smiled with a strange smile. "You know, the more hearts are worth the capture, the more difficult they are to be won."

"Oh, difficulties do not affright me," said D'Artagnan. "I shrink before nothing but impossibilities."

"Nothing is impossible," replied milady, "to true love."

"What!" thought D'Artagnan. "The note is changed. Can she be going to fall in love with me, by chance, this fair inconstant, and be disposed to eyes!"

"I love your devotedness," said milady.

"Alas! do you love nothing else in me?" asked D'Artagnan.

"I love you also, you!" said she, taking his hand.

"You love me, you!" cried he. And he folded her in his arms. She made no effort to remove her lips from his kisses, only she did not respond to them.

Her lips were cold. It appeared to D'Artagnan that he had embraced a statue.

Milady seized the desired moment.

"His name is"—said she in her turn.

"De Wardes. I know it," cried D'Artagnan.

"And how do you know it?" asked milady, seizing both his hands and endeavoring to read with her eyes to the bottom of his heart.

D'Artagnan felt he had allowed himself to be carried away and that he had committed an error.

"I know it because yesterday M. de Wardes, in a salon where I was, showed a ring which he said he had of you."

"Miserable scoundrel!" cried milady. "Well?" continued she.

"I will avenge you of this 'miserable scoundrel,'" replied D'Artagnan.

"Thanks, my brave friend!" cried milady, "and when shall I be avenged?"

"Tomorrow—immediately—when you please. You will be avenged or I shall be dead!"

Milady was about to cry out, "Immediately!" but she reflected that such precipitation would not be very gracious toward D'Artagnan.

"No," said she. "You will avenge me, replied D'Artagnan, "but now, suppose this poor Count de Wardes should be less guilty than you imagine him to be?"

"At all events," said milady seriously, "he has deceived me, and, from the moment he deceived me, he merited death."

"He shall die, then, since you condemn him!"

When the faint light of dawn peeped through the blinds milady warned D'Artagnan that it was time to depart, not forgetting to remind him of his promise to avenge her on Count de Wardes.

"You would not, then, prefer a means," resumed D'Artagnan, "which would equally avenge you, while rendering the combat useless?"

Milady looked at her lover in silence. The pale light of the first rays of day gave to her clear eyes a strangely frightful expression.

"Really," said she, "I believe you now begin to hesitate."

"You gave De Wardes a meeting on Thursday last in this very room, did you not?"

"Who—I? No, certainly not!" said milady, in a tone of voice so firm and breast, while he aimed at m retreat by the door which le ty's apartment.

give me myself another sapphire like that which she gave me for De Wardes?"

D'Artagnan drew his seat nearer to milady's.

"Well, now, let us see what you would do to prove this love of which you speak. I have an enemy," said she.

"You, madame!" said D'Artagnan, affecting surprise. "Is that possible, good and beautiful as you are?"

"An enemy who has insulted me so cruelly that between him and me it is war to the death. May I reckon on you as an auxiliary?"

"You may, madame," said he with emphasis. "My arm and my life are yours, as my love is."

"Then," said milady, "since you are as generous as you are loving"—She stopped.

"Do not overwhelm me with happiness!" cried D'Artagnan, throwing himself on his knees and covering with kisses the hands she did not attempt to withdraw.

"Avenge me of that infamous De Wardes," said milady to herself, "and I shall soon know how to get rid of you, double foot living sword blade!"

"Fall voluntarily into my arms," said D'Artagnan, likewise to himself, "after having abused me with such effrontery, hypocritical, dangerous woman, and afterward I will laugh at you with him whom you wish me to kill."

"I am ready," said he aloud.

"You have understood me, then, dear M. d'Artagnan," said milady, "and you would employ on my account your arm, which has already acquired so much renown?"

"Instantly!"

"But on my part," said milady, "how should I repay such a service? I know what lovers are: they are men who do nothing for nothing."

"You know the only reply that I desire," said D'Artagnan, "the only one worthy of you and of me!"

"Interested man!" cried she, smiling.

"I am at your orders," said D'Artagnan.

"Quite certain?" said milady, with a last doubt.

"Only name to me the base man that has brought you into my beautiful be dead!" Milady was about to cry out, "Immediately!" but she reflected that such precipitation would not be very gracious toward D'Artagnan.

"No," said she. "You will avenge me, but you will not be dead. He is a contemptible fellow. But silence! I hear my brother; it will be useless for him to find you here."

She rang the bell and Kitty appeared.

"Go out this way," said she, opening a small private door, "and come back at 11 o'clock. We will then terminate this conversation. Kitty will conduct you to my chamber."

The poor girl was near fainting at hearing these words.

Milady held out her hand to D'Artagnan, which he kissed tenderly.

"But," said he, as he retired as quickly as possible from the reproaches of Kitty, "but I must not play the fool—this is certainly a very bad woman. I must be upon my guard."

He walked six or seven times around the Place Royale, turning at every ten steps to look at the light in milady's apartment, which was to be seen through the blinds; it was evident that this time the young woman was not in such haste to retire to her apartment as she had been the first.

At length the light disappeared.

With this light was extinguished the last irresolution in the heart of D'Artagnan. With a beating heart and brain on fire he re-entered the house and flew toward Kitty's chamber.

The poor girl, pale as death and trembling in all her limbs, wished to delay her lover, but milady, with her ear on the watch, had heard the noise D'Artagnan had made and, opening the door,

"Come in," said she.

As the door closed after them, Kitty rushed toward it. Jealousy, fury, offended pride, all the passions in short, that dispute the heart of an outraged woman in love, urged her to make a revelation; but she reflected that she would be totally lost if she confessed having assisted in such a machination, and, above all, that D'Artagnan would also be lost to her forever. This last thought of love counseled her to make this last sacrifice.

D'Artagnan, on his part, had gained the summit of all his wishes. It was no longer a rival that was beloved, it was he himself that was apparently beloved. A secret voice whispered to him, at the bottom of his heart, that he was but an instrument of vengeance; that he was only caressed till he had given death; but pride, but self love, but madness silenced this voice and stifled its murmurs.

But milady, who had not the same motives for forgetfulness that D'Artagnan had, was the first to return to reality, and asked the young man if the means which were on the morrow to bring on the encounter between him and De Wardes were already arranged in his mind.

D'Artagnan, whose ideas had taken quite another course, forgot himself like a fool, and answered gallantly that that was not the time to think about duels and sword thrusts. He fancied himself very cunning when advising milady to renounce, by pardoning De Wardes, the furious projects she had formed.

"Are you afraid dear D'Artagnan?"

"You cannot think so, dear level"

"I will mark you with a second fleur-de-lis."

with a countenance so unchanged that if D'Artagnan had not been in such perfect possession of the fact he would have doubted."

"Do not say that which is not true, my angel," said D'Artagnan, smiling.

"That would be useless."

"What do you mean? Speak! You terrify me to death."

"De Wardes cannot boast of anything."

"How is that? You told me yourself that that ring"—

"That ring I have! The Count de Wardes of last Thursday and the D'Artagnan of today are the same person!"

Pale and trembling, milady repulsed D'Artagnan's attempted embrace by a violent blow on the chest as she sprang from him.

It was then broad daylight. In his eagerness to detain her, D'Artagnan had grasped her dress, but the frail cambric could not stand against two such strong wills—it was torn from her fair round shoulders, and, to his horror and astonishment, D'Artagnan recognized upon one of them, indelibly branded, the mark which is impressed by the ignominious hand of the executioner.

"Great heaven!" cried D'Artagnan, loosing his hold and remaining mute, motionless and frozen.

But milady felt herself denounced by his terror even. He had doubtless seen all. The young man now knew her secret, her terrible secret—the secret she concealed even from her maid with such care, the secret of which all the world excepting he was ignorant.

"Ah, wretch," she cried, "thou hast basely betrayed me, and, still more, thou hast my secret! Thou shalt die!"

And she flew to a little inlaid casket which stood upon the toilet, opened it with a feverish and trembling hand, drew from it a small poniard with a golden haft and a sharp, thin blade, and then threw herself with a bound upon D'Artagnan.

Although the young man was, as we know, brave, he drew back to the other side of the room as he would have done from a serpent which was crawling toward him, and his sword coming in contact with his nervous hand, he drew it almost unconsciously from the scabbard.

She then endeavored to seize the sword with her hands. But D'Artagnan kept it free from her grasp and continued to present the point, sometimes at her own, sometimes at her

"I promise you." "My dear friend, of whose quence is it if she kills Athos. "Do you, per chance set any great store by life?" "There is something horrible under all this, Athos woman is one of the cardinals I am sure of that"

"In that case take care of If the cardinal does not hold high admiration for the affair don he entertains a great love for you. If you go out, do not alone. When you eat use caution. Mistrust, in short, even your own shadow."

"Fortunately," said D'Artagnan, this will be only necessary tomorrow evening, for when the army we shall have, I hope men to read."

"In the meantime," said D'Artagnan, renounce my plan of seclusion wherever you go I will go. You must return to the Rue soyeurs. I will accompany this will not advance your eyes but fortunately you have phire."

"The sapphire is yours, Athos. Did you not tell me family jewel?"

"I take back the ring after passed through the hands of famous creature! Never! It is defiled, D'Artagnan."

"Pledge it then. You can I least a thousand crowns on that sum you can extricate from your present difficulty when you are full of money I can redeem it and take it back from its ancient stains, as it passed through the hands of Athos smiled.

"Agreed. Let us pledge but upon one condition."

"What is that?"

"That there shall be 500 crowns and 500 crowns for me."

"Don't think of such a thing I don't want the half of such I am still only in the guard; selling my saddles I shall get do I want? A horse for that's all. Besides, you forgive have a ring likewise."

"To which you attach more than I do to mine; at least thought it seemed so."

"Yes, for in any extreme stance it might not only ext from some great embarrassment even a great danger. It is no valuable diamond; it is an e talisman."

When Athos was about to with D'Artagnan he made the sign of a person taking and the lackey immediately to his musketoon and got ready his master.

They arrived without accident Rue des Fosseurs. Bonacieux standing at the door. He caught his ill meaning, bantering D'Artagnan as he passed him.

"Make haste, my dear lodger. There is a very pretty thing for you upstairs, and, you women don't like to be made! Upon the landing leading chamber and crouching again

As soon as she perceived him:

said she. "Remember, it was you who ruined me."

"Yes, yes, to be sure, Kitty!" said D'Artagnan. "Be at ease, my girl.
But what happened after my depart-

"How can I tell," said Kitty. "I thought she would remember it was province with some lady of your acquaintance."

"My dear little love, in my country the ladies do without chambermaids.
But stop; I can manage your business for you. Planchet, go and find M.
Aramis. Request him to come here directly. We have something very important to say to him. Kitty, did you ever hear talk of a young woman who was carried off one night?"

"There now! Oh, M. le Chevalier, do you love that woman still?"

"No, no; it is one of my friends who loves her—M. Athos; this gentleman here. You understand, my dear girl, she is the wife of that frightful baboon you saw at the door as you came in."

"Oh, you remind me of my fright!
If he should have known me again!"

"What! Know you again! Did you ever see that man before?"

"He came twice to milady's about fifteen or eighteen days ago, and yesterday evening he came again."

"My dear Athos, we are enveloped in a network of spies! Do you believe he knew you again, Kitty?"

"I pulled down my hood as soon as I saw him, but perhaps it was too late."

At that moment Aramis arrived.

The matter was all explained to him, and the friends gave him to understand that among all his high connections he must find a place for Kitty.

"Mme. de Bois-Tracy asked me, for one of her friends who resides in the provinces, I believe, for a trustworthy femme de chambre," said Aramis.

He placed himself at the table and wrote a little note which he sealed with a ring and gave the billet to Kitty.

"And now, my dear girl," said D'Artagnan, "you know that it is not good for any of us to be here. Therefore let us separate. We shall meet again in better days, depend upon it."

And he went to conduct Kitty downstairs.

An instant afterward the three young men separated, agreeing to meet again at 4 o'clock at Athos' residence, and leaving Planchet to guard the house.

Aramis returned home and Athos and D'Artagnan went about pledging the sapphire.

As the Gascon had foreseen, they found no difficulty in obtaining 300 pistoles upon the ring. Still further, the jeweler told them that if they would sell it to him, as it would make a magnificent pendant for earrings, he would give 500 pistoles for it.

Athos and D'Artagnan, with the activity of two soldiers and the knowledge of two connoisseurs, hardly required three hours to purchase the endezzvous much more serious than this other."

"I will go to the second after attending the first," said D'Artagnan. "One is for 7 o'clock and the other for 8;
there will be time for both."

"Yes. But the Bastille?" said Ara-mis.

"Bah! You will get me out if they put me there," said D'Artagnan.

"To be sure we will," replied Aramis and Porthos, with admirable promptness and decision, as if that were the simplest thing in the world.

"Let us do better than that," said Athos. "Do not let us leave him during the whole evening. Let each of us wait at a gate of the palace with a musketeer behind him. If we see any carriage with closed windows and of at all suspicious appearance come out, let us fall upon it. It is a long time since we have had a skirmish with the guards of M. le Cardinal. M. de Tre-ville must think us dead."

"Admirable!" said the young men in chorus.

"Well," said Porthos, "I will run to the hotel and engage our comrades to hold themselves in readiness by 8

Athos divided them into three groups, assumed the command of one, gave the second to Aramis and the third to Porthos, and then each group went and took a position for watching near an entrance.

D'Artagnan on his part entered at the front gate.

"If De Wardes has related all our affair to the cardinal, which is not to be doubted, and if he has recognized me, which is probable, I may consider myself almost as a condemned man," said he to himself, shaking his head.
"But why has he waited till now?
Humph! That's all plain enough.
Milady has laid her complaint against me with that hypocritical grief which renders her so interesting, and this last offense has made the cup overflow. D'Artagnan, my friend, you are brave, you are prudent, you have excellent qualities, but the women will ruin you."

In this waiting room were five or six of the cardinal's guards, who recognized D'Artagnan, and, knowing that it was he who had wounded Jussac, they looked upon him with a smile of singular meaning. This smile appeared to D'Artagnan to be of bad augury.

The usher returned and made a sign to D'Artagnan to follow him. It appeared to the young man that the guards on seeing him depart whispered among themselves.

He followed a corridor, crossed a grand saloon, entered a library and found himself in the presence of a man seated at a desk and writing.

The usher introduced him and retired without speaking a word. D'Artagnan remained standing and examined this man. It was the cardinal.

CHAPTER XXX.

A Terrible Vision.

THE cardinal leaned his elbow on his manuscript, his cheek upon his hand and looked intently at the young man for a moment. No one had a more searching eye than the Cardinal de Richelieu, and D'Artagnan felt this glance penetrate his veins like a fever.

"Monsieur," said the cardinal, "there are several branches of the D'Arta-gnans at Tarbes and in its environs.
To which do you belong?"

"I am the son of him who served in the religious wars."

"That is well. It is you who set out seven or eight months ago from your country to try your fortune in the capital?"

"Yes, monseigneur."
"You came through Meung, where something befell you."

"Monseigneur," said D'Artagnan,
"this was what happened to me"—

"Of no consequence, of no consequence!" resumed the cardinal, with a smile, which indicated that he knew the story as well as he who wished to relate it. "You were recommended to M. de Treville, were you not?"

"Yes, monseigneur, but in that unfortunate affair at Meung"—

"The letter was lost," replied his eminence. "Yes, I know that. Since

"I will kill me!" said Do you, per chance, think I eat store by life?"

"It is something horribly mysterious all this, Athos. This is one of the cardinal's spies, is that?"

"In case take care of yourself. Cardinal does not hold you in irritation for the affair of Lontertains a great hatred for you go out, do not go out when you eat use every pre-mistrust, in short, everything, own shadow."

"Ately," said D'Artagnan, "all be only necessary till after evening, for when once with we shall have, I hope, only lead."

would give 500 pistoles for it. Athos and D'Artagnan, with the activity of two soldiers and the knowledge of two connoisseurs, hardly required three hours to purchase the entire equipment of the musketeer. But when Aramis' horse and equipment and those of Grimaud were purchased Athos had not a sou left of his 150 pistoles. D'Artagnan offered his friend a part of his share, which he should return when convenient.

But Athos only replied to this proposal by shrugging his shoulders.

"How much did the jeweler say he would give for the sapphire if he purchased it?" said Athos.

"Five hundred pistoles."

"That is to say, 200 more—100 pistoles for you and 100 pistoles for me. Well, now, that would be a real fortune to us, my friend. Go and tell him the ring is his, D'Artagnan, and bring back the 200 pistoles with you."

Half an hour afterward D'Artagnan returned with the 2,000 livres and without having met with any accident.

It was thus Athos found at home resources which he did not expect.

At 4 o'clock the four friends were all assembled at Athos' apartments. Suddenly Planchet entered, bringing two letters for D'Artagnan. The one was a little billet, genteelly folded, with a pretty seal in green wax, on which was impressed a dove bearing a green branch.

The other was a large square epistle, resplendent with the terrible arms of his eminence the cardinal duke.

At the sight of the little letter the heart of D'Artagnan bounded, for he believed he had seen that writing before, and, although he had seen that writing but once, the memory of it remained at the bottom of his heart.

"Be," said the letter, "on Thursday next at 7 o'clock in the evening on the road to Chailiot and look carefully into the carriages that pass, but, if you have any consideration for your own life or that of those who love you, do not speak a single word, do not make a movement which may lead any one to believe you have recognized her who exposes herself to everything for the sake of seeing you but for an instant."

No signature.

"Don't go," said Athos. "Between 6 and 7 o'clock the road of Chailiot is quite deserted. It is a snare."

"But suppose we all go," said D'Artagnan. "They won't devour us all four—four lackeys, horses, arms and all!"

"But if it is a woman that writes," said Aramis, "and that woman desires not to be seen remember you compromise her, D'Artagnan, which is not behaving like a gentleman."

"You will remain in the background, and I will advance alone."

"Let us make the trip," said Aramis. "As you please," said Athos.

"Gentlemen," said D'Artagnan, "it is half past 4, and we have scarcely time to be on the road of Chailiot by 6."

"But this second letter," said Athos. "You forget that."

"Well," said D'Artagnan, "let us see, gentlemen, what are his eminence's commands," and he unsealed the letter and read:

M. d'Artagnan of the King's guards, company Desessart, is expected at the Palais Cardinal this evening at 8 o'clock.

LA HOUDENIERE, Captain of the Guards.

"Whew!" said Athos. "Here's a ren-

"Admirable!" said the young men in chorus.

"Well," said Porthos, "I will run to the hotel and engage our comrades to hold themselves in readiness by 8 o'clock, the rendezvous the Place du Palais Cardinal. In the meantime you see that the lackeys saddle the horses."

A quarter of an hour afterward Porthos appeared at the end of the Rue Ferou, mounted upon a very handsome horse, the gift of Mme. Coque-nard. Mousqueton followed him upon an Auvergne horse, small, but very good looking. Porthos was resplendent with joy and pride.

At the same time Aramis made his appearance at the other end of the street upon a superb English charger; Bazin followed him upon a roan.

The two musketeers met at the gate, Athos and D'Artagnan watching their approach from the window.

D'Artagnan and Athos came down, got into their saddles and all four set forward—Athos upon a horse he owed to a woman, Aramis on a horse he owed to his mistress, Porthos on a horse he owed to the lawyer's wife and D'Artagnan on a horse which he had purchased and which he owed to his good fortune, the best mistress possible. The lackeys followed.

A short gallop brought them to the road of Chailiot; the day began to decline, carriages were passing and re-passing. D'Artagnan, keeping at some distance from his friends, darted a scrutinizing glance into every carriage that appeared, but saw no face with which he was acquainted.

At length, after waiting a quarter of an hour and just as twilight was beginning to thicken, a carriage appeared coming at a quick pace on the road of Sevres. A presentiment instantly told D'Artagnan that this carriage contained the person who had appointed the rendezvous; the young man was himself astonished to find his heart beat so violently. Almost instantly a female head was put out at the window, with two fingers placed upon her mouth, either to enjoin silence or to send him a kiss. D'Artagnan uttered a slight cry of joy. This woman, or, rather, this apparition, for the carriage passed with the rapidity of a vision, was Mme. Bonacieux.

By an involuntary movement and in spite of the injunction given D'Artagnan put his horse into a gallop and in a few strides overtook the carriage, but the window was close shut; the vision had disappeared.

D'Artagnan then remembered the injunction, "If you value your own life or that of those who love you remain motionless and as if you had seen nothing."

He stopped, therefore, trembling, not for himself, but for the poor woman who had evidently exposed herself to great danger by appointing this rendezvous.

The carriage pursued its way, still going at a great pace, till it dashed into Paris and disappeared.

They reached the Rue St. Honore, and in the Place du Palais Cardinal they found the twelve convoked musketeers walking about in expectation of their comrades. There only they made them acquainted with the matter in question.

The Cardinal Looked Intently at the Young Man For a Moment.

that time many things have happened to you. You were walking one day behind the Chartreux when it would have been better for you if you had been elsewhere. Then you took with your friends a journey to the waters of Forges. They stopped on the road, but you continued yours. That is all very simple. You had business in England."

"Monseigneur," said D'Artagnan, quite confused, "I went—"

"Hunting at Windsor or elsewhere. That concerns nobody. I am acquainted with the circumstances, because it is my position to know everything. On your return you were received by an august personage, and I perceive with pleasure that you preserve the souvenir she gave you."

D'Artagnan placed his hand upon the queen's diamond, which he wore, and quickly turned the collet inward, but it was too late.

"The day after that you received a visit from Cavois," resumed the cardinal. "He went to desire you to come to the palace. You did not return that visit, and you were wrong. Seek in your memory for what happened that very night."

That was the very evening on which the carrying off of Mme. Bonacieux took place. D'Artagnan trembled. And he likewise recollected that half an hour before the poor woman had passed close to him, without doubt, carried away by the same power that had caused her disappearance.

"Dr. Miles' Nervine Completely Cured Our Little Boy of Fits."

A family can suffer no greater affliction than to have a child subject to fits or epilepsy. Many a father or mother would give their all to restore such a child to health.

"I am heartily glad to tell you of our little boy who was completely cured of fits. He commenced having them at 10 years of age and had them for four years. I tried three doctors and one specialist but all of them said he could not be cured, but Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills made a complete cure. He is now hale, hearty and gay. It has been three years since he had the last spell. I shall give Dr. Miles' medicines praise wherever I go. You are at liberty to use this letter as you see fit and anyone writing to me I will gladly answer if they enclose stamp for reply."

HANDY WAGON JACKS.

Six Forms of This Appliance, Which is Always Handy About the Farm.

The diagrams represent six of the most convenient wagon jacks. Exact specifications and minute directions are not necessary, as any farmer can determine for himself the kind of material to use and the best way to make a jack for his particular requirements.

The ease of adjusting to suit the height of the object to be raised will commend the jack in Fig. 1. Use for the base piece a 4 by 6 inch scantling, five feet long, making the notches on one of the flat sides, reaching about half the length of stick. The two uprights holding the lever are three feet long and notched on the front. The brace which rests in the notches on the base sill is made long enough to suit a low down wagon when resting in the front notch. The lever is four and one-half feet long. The illustration shows plainly how the wagon is held when once lifted. The entire device is held together by five bolts.

In Fig. 2 a 3 by 6 inch plank does for the sill, and the uprights may be inch boards five inches wide at the bottom, tapering to three inches at the top. The lever is adjusted to the height of the wagon by the holes in the uprights. A short chain fastened to the sill is hooked to the staple or eye bolt in the lever to hold it when desired.

Fig. 3 is about the same, but the attachment for holding the lever at any point desired is an improvement on the chain. The blacksmith can make this from wagon tire. An inch strip of the same material is fastened across the uprights for the bar to catch on.

Fig. 4 is very simple. The upright pieces are 1½ by 3 inches, three feet long, and the sill is a 2 by 4 resting on its narrow edge. The lever is notched on top, and a heavy wire looped over it holds it in position.

The very convenient jack in Fig. 5 is, with the exception of the lever and the catch cleat, made of 2 by 4 scantling. When mortised together as shown it makes a very strong jack. The lever may be one and one-half inch stuff, about four inches wide at the large end, and the cleat to hold it is of the same material.

Another way of making this last jack is shown in Fig. 6. The upright scantling, instead of the lever, is notched, and a quarter inch wire is used to engage in the notches and hold the lever in the proper position. The wire loop is kept from slipping where it crosses the lever by means of a staple driven over it into the lever.—Farm and Fireside.

Handy Seed Dropper.

An old garden hose about three and one-half feet long attached to a funnel that fits snugly makes an excellent dropper for garden and field seeds. No stooping is necessary.—Farm and Fireside.

Around the Honey Makers.

If you have not already done so, by all means requeen all colonies with young queens, as this will in a large measure prevent swarming next season.

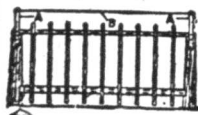

For comb honey a hive a little more shallow in the brood nest than the regular body is preferable, as it forces the honey up into sections just where it is wanted.

There are some 800,000 beekeepers in the United States. More than 500,000 are farmers who keep bees as a side line, obtaining honey for home use and a small trade.

There is no better time than the latter part of September for making the colonies strong in bees and stores for their long winter's sleep, and in this respect "a stitch in time is worth nine." While there will be little brood reared the last of this month, yet the weaker colonies may be strengthened by giving them frames of sealed brood and bees from the stronger ones, and this can be safely done.

It Frightens Them.

Do your chickens or your neighbor's fly over your picket fence into your garden? ### Little Farm Hints.

Never mix sun slaked lime with manure, as it will cause the escape of ammonia, one of its most valuable elements.

Clean out the chaff and bayseed on the barn floor and scatter it over bare places in the lots and pastures. This scattered seed represents good money value, and it should be put to good purpose.

If you want spinach for use in early spring, at the time when dandelion greens are ripe, sow seed in September or October. Frequently it does not winter well, especially if not protected by covering lightly with litter.

Where practicable the fruit orchards should be planted in autumn. Among the principal advantages are leisure time, better physical condition of soil and the early establishment and consequent earlier growth of trees. Owing to its less hardy nature the peach is to be excepted from the fall planting.

THE BIG RACE.

A LL set
For the presidential race.
The chase
Is on.
The fighters don
Their war paint,
And the faint,
Low murmur of the coming battle
Assails our ears.
This is one of the years
In which we list to oratory
And know even less Than we could guess
Before we started to listen.
Words glisten,
But what they disclose Goodness only knows.
Orators talk for effect
And not to correct
The evils of our day.
They say
One thing,
But there is a string
To it,
And it will fit
In a round or a square hole.
It is a hot coal
In one town
And a chunk of ice farther down
The state.
The great orator moves his lip
And words slip
Out as water from a fount.
But what do they amount
To, say, Anyway?
It is a big noise,
A hurrah, boys,
While reason takes a back seat
And the heat
Of prejudice rules.
But when the speech cools
Where is the meat?
Nowhere.
It is positive much

ABOUT THE HOME.

Good Things For the Economical Housewife to Know.

People using articles made of rubber that frequently lose their elasticity through oxidation may restore the material to its original condition by a simple process. Soak the part in a mixture of one part of ammonia to two parts water. This is particularly well adapted to the restoring of rubber bands, rings and small tubing which are ready to become dry and brittle.

Tests made at the London electrical exposition have demonstrated that the shrinkage of meat when cooked in a coal range is somewhat greater than that of the same meat cooked in a gas range and considerably more than when cooked in an electric range. A leg of mutton weighing eight pounds and eight ounces showed a shrinkage of two pounds and eleven ounces when cooked in the coal range, whereas a leg of mutton weighing nine pounds showed a loss of one pound and four ounces when cooked in an electric oven. The shrinkage for the gas oven was two pounds and four ounces on an eight pound leg of mutton.

Grease on a kitchen floor can be softened by pouring kerosene over it and letting it remain for ten or fifteen minutes; then scrub with soda water.

Paint and varnish can be easily removed from the hands by first rubbing well into them some grease or lard, then washing with soap and water.

Shabby japanned trays can be renovated by an application of copal varnish to which a little bronze powder has been added. Keep in a warm place till the varnish is dry and hard.

When ironing between buttons on a blouse place the buttons on a folded Turkish towel. The buttons will sink into the towel, and the spaces between them will be ironed beautifully smooth.

Linoleum will look better and last the longer for an occasional rub over with a flannel cloth dipped in paraffin, which will remove all dirt and stains.

SHE FAINTED WITH THE AGONY

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Her Kidneys

Miss MAGGIE JANNACK

MOUNTAIN, ONT., DEC. 14th, 1910

"I desire to let the world know the great debt I owe "Fruit-a-tives" which saved my life when I had given up hope of ever being well again.

For six years, I suffered from dreadful Kidney Disease. My legs and lower part of my body were fearfully swollen.
The pain in my side and legs would be so bad that I would faint with the agony.

Five different doctors attended me and all said it was Kidney Disease and gave me no hope of getting well.

A kind neighbor visited me and mentioned the case of Mrs. Fenwick who had been cured of a sickness like mine. I took "Fruit-a-tives" and in a short time, I began to feel better—the swelling went down—the pains were easier—and soon I was well.

I have gained over 30 pounds since taking "Fruit-a-tives"—and my friends look upon my recovery as a miracle."
(Miss) MAGGIE JANNACK.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c.—
or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-atives Limited, Ottawa.

Getting Even.

"I am going to get three teeth pulled this afternoon."
"Toothache?"
"No."
"Then why the heroism?"
"Dentist owes me a bill, and I can't get it out of him any other way."

Making an Experiment.

"Why, Madge, aren't you afraid you'll catch cold?"
"That's what I am trying to do."
"What for?"
"I am growing just the teeniest bit stout."
"Well?"
"And I want to wear my swellest evening dress the last of the week."
"Yes."
"Well, cold contracts, you know, and I am hoping by means of a good cold to squeeze into the gown."

What He Thought.

"It is desirable to be self made."
"Do you think so?"
"You bet."
"But I have noticed that it gives more domestic satisfaction to let your wife make you."

How They Do It.

"I hear the men talk a lot about their housekeeping. Guess they must do it by machinery."
"Not exactly that way."
"How?"
"Hot air."

Different.

"Madge is pretty."
"Aw, come off."
"Madge is pretty rich."
"Indeed! And what a beautiful girl she is too!"

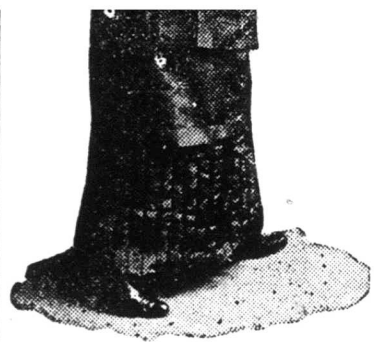

There are plenty of modest, retiring people in this world, but you don't hear them making a big noise about it.

When a man's expenses exceed his income by a few hundred thousand per cent he begins to think he's something of a financier himself.

The fellow sitting on the fence this season can look either side and see a three ring circus going on for his amusement.

Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is grown he'll purchase the right of way and run things to suit himself.

Maybe the people who have no consideration for the feelings of others might have if some one would present them with a consideration.

FROCK OF NAVY BLUE FAILLIE SILK.

which shows a skirt of small box plaits sewed all the way down and pressed flat.

The gown is made of navy blue faille silk and is short enough to show the buttoned boot of patent leather.

Bathroom Novelties.

The up to date beauty is always on the lookout for still more ingenious fittings for her bathroom, which, in a sense, is the workshop wherein the foundation of her good looks is laid.

Decidedly new this fall are glass twisted towel rods. The twisted glass prevents the towels from slipping off the rods, as so often happens with plain glass rods.

Another new fixture, which will be found useful in a small bathroom where it is impossible to have a stationary washstand, is a basin and soap holder of rather heavy wire, white enameled. This holder is made to span the bathtub from one side to the other by means of a heavy wire extending on each side.

A white enameled manicure table with a glass top over oak will be found convenient for either dressing room or bathroom.

Good News For Cooks.

So many feel that if there were a way to broil meats without having the heavy broiling pan to clean afterward the half of the drudgery of housekeeping would be gone that they will be glad to know of the newly invented "broiler" for use on the top of the stove. Chops, chickens or even a steak may be cooked on it successfully, and it is splendid for the camper's outfit. Its cost is 60 cents. A perforated tin sheet to be had for 10 cents is also a novelty worth remembering, for this is to slip under kettles and pots to keep them from burning and blackening.

The Smell of Paint.

A room which has been newly painted should not be slept in until the smell of paint has entirely disappeared. A pailful of fresh water kept in the room and changed frequently will help to purify the air.

The Ubiquitous Collector.

"What are you doing?"
"Building castles in the air."
"For your own occupancy?"
"Yes."
"Look out that some of these fresh aviators don't try to collect rent from you."

His Method.

"The Bluffeurs are swell people, aren't they?"
"Well, they ought to be."
"Why?"
"Bluffeur owes more money than any other man in town."

OF PLUM COLORED BROADCLOTH.

this new suit is made youthful and gay, by its cut and by the tricks of trimming on the coat.

The plaited skirt is short enough to show a smart gaiter boot with a buttoned gaiter top of plum colored cloth to match the suit.

Hints to the Busy Housewife.

If you would have light dumplings leave the cover off for about ten minutes after you have put them in.

Cheese salad dressing for green salads requires about two tablespoonfuls of soft American cheese rubbed smooth with salt, paprika and a tablespoonful or two of vinegar. Then add sufficient oil to make thin enough to use.

When beets are left from dinner wash them and rinse in boiling water to free them from butter or sauce and drop into a weak vinegar. In this condition they may be kept for a long time and may be used as needed for salads and garnishing.

One housekeeper has prevented many a burned roast or overbaked cake by setting the alarm clock to the proper time to open the oven door. Then she goes about her work in other parts of the house knowing that she will hear the imperative call at the right time.

Cauliflower salad is improved by the addition of stuffed olives and a Spanish red pepper or two, both chopped fine.

Helps For Home Decorators.

Before starting to decorate a room it is very essential to consider for what purpose the room is to be used. The individual tastes and habits of the people who are to occupy it must be first taken into account.

The fewer colors used in a room the more pleasing and restful the result will be. A multiplicity of colors produces the same effect as a number of voices talking at the same time. Each room should speak with but one voice. It should contain one color, which at once and unmistakably asserts its predominance.

Most rooms contain a mixture of good, bad and indifferent furniture, so it is best to adopt the decorative treatment to the best pieces and to discard those which are in bad taste, replacing them, if necessary, by willow chairs and stained deal tables until it is possible to buy better pieces.

George Robinson, a former resident of Morven, but latterly of Cataragui, died on Saturday last at Melfort, Sask., aged 62 years. Deceased went west about three months ago to visit friends and was stricken with heart trouble. The body is being brought to Napanee and the funeral will take place from the residence of Rev. Mr. Sexsmith.

David Haycock, a former well-known resident of North Fredericksburgh, died last week in the west. He left last August to work in the harvest fields and no word was received that he was ill until the telegram arrived announcing his sudden death. He leaves a young widow and little son who are at present staying with her parents Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Lund, York Road.

Walter Exley, one of Napanee's most highly respected residents, and a man of sterling worth, passed away on Thursday morning after a short illness. Some weeks ago Mr. Exley's residence in South Napanee was burned and he had been very active in helping in the rebuilding of his home and in doing so overworked himself and brought on the trouble which caused his death. Deceased had been a resident of South Napanee for a number of years and was for years engaged in the butcher business on the market square, but retired from business some years ago. Besides his aged widow he leaves three sons and one daughter. The funeral will take place from his late residence on Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m., in Trinity Church.

One dozen nice large strawberries were brought into our Sanctum on Tuesday, some of them being ripe, and the others in a green state. They were picked in the garden of Mrs. James Allen, Adelphi street, on Tuesday, October 29th. It is certainly very unusual to pick strawberries at this season of the year.

Winnipeg, Oct. 29th—Nearly a foot of snow fell here last night, and driven by a strong wind, it piled up on the streets and sidewalks in huge banks. The street cars were blocked for several hours this morning and are not running yet on some streets at 10 o'clock. This is the first snow of the season, and the storm is continuing to-day. Many sleighs have appeared on the streets.

The Napanee Ladies' Musical Club.

At the commencement of this, the seventh season of the Ladies' Musical Club, its Board of Directors take pleasure in announcing that the schedule for 1912-13, bids fair to surpass any of the former years, and in consequence they solicit the co-operation of the club's splendid membership in carrying out the plans already formed. The talent of our town requires first sympathy and encouragement. In these we look to the Associate Members, who with only lenient thoughts and generous words, devoid of criticism, may assist greatly the work of advancement. As for the active members, each is doing her best in offering her talent to the fulfilment of the original purpose, with the hope also, of giving pleasure to her audience. The schedule for the year is one of promise, and consists of six local recitals, and four artists recitals. In choosing these artists the greatest care will be taken and a musical treat may be expected once every month. The ten musicals do not include the annual concert, which we hope to be equal to any of the six which have already been produced under the auspices of the Napanee Ladies' Musical Club. The club opens the season on Friday, November 8th, at 4.15 o'clock, with a musical tea and programme, the topic being "Women Composers."

On Nov. 22nd music of the British Isles is sure to prove an interesting programme.

Dec. 13th, will witness the first artists recital.

Jan. 1st will be devoted to sacred music.

Feb. 14th will be students day and between these last two dates the annual concert will be given.

On Feb. 28th will come the second artists recital.

Mar. 18th, German songs.

Mar. 28th, third artists recital.

April 13th, French, Italian and Hungarian songs.

April 27th, the fourth and last artists recital.

Members dues will be $1.00 with the exception of students between the age of 12-16 years, 50c.

An Offer that Involves No Risk For Those Who Accept It.

We are so positive our remedy will relieve constipation, that we offer to furnish it free of all cost if it fails.

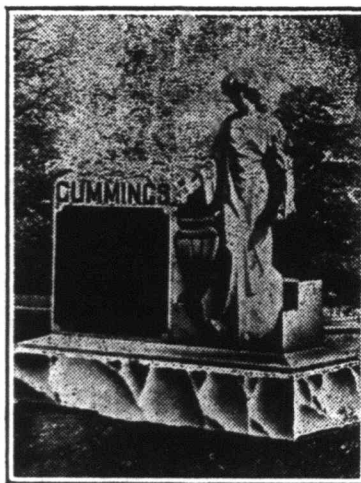

Constipation is caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestines or descending colon. To expect relief you must therefore tone up and strengthen those organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our guarantee. They are eaten like candy, and are particularly ideal for children. They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They have a neutral action on the other organs or glands. They do not purge or cause any inconvenience whatever. They act to overcome chronic or habitual constipation, and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments. Try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Two sizes, 10c. and 25c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. T. B. Wallace, druggist.

Broke Insulators.

Frederick Boardman and Tony Disteton, two young men convicted of breaking insulators. The parties were found guilty of the charge that they did on the 8th. inst., unlawfully and wilfully damaged two large insulators the property of the Seymour Power and Electric Company. The offence was committed in the Township of Sydney, about a mile west of the city limits. It was not a question of money consideration with the Electric Company, but to protect their property and at the same time protect lives, as the breaking of the insulators may cause the live wires to fall. As Boardman did not appear to be the greater offender he was given a sentence of two weeks in jail, to date from the time of arrest. Disteton, who had evidently been in court before in Hamilton, was given a sentence of one month in jail to date from time of arrest.
